f Brethren, Gen. 13:8.

16 And when ^a we entered into ^b Rome, ^{c1} Paul was ^d suffered to abide by himself with the ^e soldier that guarded him.

17 And it came to pass, that after ^f three days he called together ² those that were ^g the chief of the ^h Jews: and when they were come together, he said unto them, I, ⁱ brethren, ^j though I had done nothing against the people, or ^k the customs of our ^{l m} fathers, yet ⁿ was delivered ^o prisoner from ^p Jē-rū-sā-lēm into the ^q hands of the Romans: 18 who, when they had examined me, ^r desired to set me at liberty, because there was ^{s t} no cause of ^u death in me. 19 But when the Jews spake against it, I was constrained to ^v appeal unto ^w Cæ-sar; not that I had aught whereof to accuse my ^x nation. 20 For this cause therefore did I ³ entreat you to see and to speak with me: for because of the ^y hope of ^z Iſ-rā-ēl I am ^a bound with ^b this ^c chain. 21 And they said unto him, We neither received ^d letters from ^e Jū-dæ-ā concerning thee, nor did any of the ^f brethren come hither and report or speak any

*ROMANS: By Paul at Corinth.—We know where Paul was when he wrote to the Roman Christians. He is the guest of Gaius (Rom. 16:23), and Erastus the treasurer of the city (ibid) sends salutation. He is about to leave these parts (15:23 f.) for Jerusalem, as he did later, via Macedonia (Acts 20:3 f.). Meanwhile he sends greeting to the Romans by Phoebe of Cenchreæ (Rom. 16:1), the probable bearer of the letter.

Date.—The Epistle was written therefore just before Paul left Corinth for Jerusalem (Rom. 15:25 f.) with the collection. He arrived in Jerusalem with the collection at Pentecost—Acts 20:16; 21:26 f. The date of the Epistle is therefore early spring of A. D. 56 or 57.

Paul's Plans.—He hopes to go on his way to Spain after his visit to Jerusalem—Acts 19:21; Rom. 15:24, 28.

Reason for Visit to Rome.—He wishes fruit in Rome also (Rom. 1:13-15), and in particular wishes to develop the virgin soil of Spain in harmony with his profession for pioneer work—15:16-24.

Statesmanship of Paul.—He has the conception of a worldwide Kingdom for Christ (cf. Mt. 28:19 ff.) that shall take in the east as well as the west—Rom. 1:15; 15:16 f. In a measure he has given his message to the east—15:23. He now yearns that the west may come to Christ.

No New Purpose with Paul.—He had indeed often planned to go to Rome (1:13), but was then hindered till now—15:23.

Origin of the Church in Rome.—No light is thrown on this subject save that Paul was not the founder. It is improbable that Peter was, else Paul would not have written as he did in Rom. 15:19 f. about another man's foundation. The Church in all probability was the indirect result of the conversion of some of the Jews and sojourners from Rome on the great Day of Pentecost—Acts 2:10.

Character of the Church.—It was partly Jewish and partly Gentile; cf. Rom. 2:9 f.

Integrity of the Epistle.—Some critics argue that the original Epistle closed at the end of chapter 14, since in some MSS. the doxology of 16:25-27 comes at the close of that chapter. Others find a difficulty in the many names mentioned in chapter 16. But Rome was the center of the life of the world. Christians, like other people, drifted to Rome, and among them many of Paul's companions and friends from the east. The unity of the book is the most natural position in view of the facts.

Language.—Even in Rome Greek was the language in common use, especially among those who had drifted from the east. Latin was alone used in North Africa, but in Rome Greek was spoken by many who could not use Latin. Paul himself probably knew Latin, but Greek was the common means of communication in the Empire.

Gospel of Paul.—In a true sense this Epistle is Paul's Gospel—2:16. The very fact that he had not yet been to Rome led him to give a more extended discussion of the fundamental truths preached by him. It is thus more formal and less incidental than Galatians. It is a real letter, but partakes also of the nature of a treatise. It is not a book on systematic theology, but a vital exposition of the gospel message on broad lines properly related to Jewish ceremonialism and Greek speculative philosophy. Paul was the first true Christian philosopher.

Not Polemical.—His purpose was not therefore primarily polemical, as was the case in Galatians. He aims rather to give an interpretation of the message of Christ to both Jew and Gentile. He expounds a universal gospel. The Judaizing controversy is still in his mind as part of the historical background, but not as the main consideration or occasion of the Epistle.

Careful Preface.—He has a more formal and extended Preface (1:1-7) that really sketches the "Gospel of God" in broad outlines and Paul's relation to it and theirs also.

Apologetic Statement of Theme.—In 1:8-17 Paul explains why he writes and tells his message. He is to discuss "a righteousness of God" as revealed in the Gospel.

The Gentiles lost.—He first proves the need of the Gospel of God's righteousness since the Gentiles are lost without it—1:18-32.

The Jews lost.—He then shows that the Jews also are lost without this Gospel of Grace—2:1-3:20. Hence all the world is lost in sin.

Brief Exposition of Paul's Gospel.—In 3:21-31 in short compass Paul sets forth his gospel, the atoning death of Christ as the basis, the personal trust of the believer in Jesus, the consequent justification of the believer by God.

Abraham and Justification.—For the benefit of the Jewish Christians Paul shows how Abraham himself exercised Faith and was justified (cf. ch. 4). The Blessed Peace of the Christian is set forth in 5:1-11.

Adam and Christ.—A parallel is run between the relation of Adam to the race and of Christ to the redeemed in Ch. 5:12-21.

Sanctification.—Justification does not mean approval of evil, but has for its ultimate object real goodness. God's righteousness begins with justification (imputed righteousness) and ends with sanctification—Chs. 6-8.

Failure of the Jews explained.—It was an unpleasant task, but Paul explains why the Gentiles have taken the place of the Jews in the spiritual Israel—Chs. 9-11.

Personal Consecration.—With Paul election means the obligation to personal piety in practical relations with the church and the world—Chs. 12-13.

The Weak Brother.—In particular the strong brother was to help the weak in a matter like eating meats offered to idols—14:1-15:13.

The Future for Paul.—He unbosoms his purpose to the Roman brethren—15:14-33.

Paul's Influence in Rome.—It is already great, as is plain from his many friends there—Ch. 16. He has a host of fellow-workers all over the world.

ready to ^{a b} preach the ^c gospel to you also that are in ^d Rome.

16 For I am not ^e ashamed of the ¹ gospel: for it ^g is the power of God unto ^h salvation to every one that ⁱ believeth; to the ^{j k} Jew first, and also to ^l the ^{m n} Græek. 17 For therein is ^o revealed ^{p q} a righteousness of ^r God from faith unto faith: as it is ^s written, ² But ^t the righteous shall ^u live ³ by faith.

18 For ^{v w x} the wrath of God is revealed from ^y heaven against all ^z ungodliness and unrighteousness of ^a men, who ^{b c} hinder the ^d truth in unrighteousness; 19 because ^e that which is ^f known of God is ^g manifest in them; for God manifested it unto them. 20 For the invisible things of him ^{h i} since the ^j creation of the ^k world are clearly seen, ^l being perceived through the things that are made, even his everlasting ^m power and divinity; ⁶ that

III. Word Studies.—Five Aspects of Justification. 1. The Spring of—Grace—Rom. 3:24. 2. The Principle of—Faith—

5 ^a Being therefore justified ¹ by ^b faith, ^{c2} we have ^d peace with ^e God ^f through our ^g Lord Jē-šūs Christ; 2 through whom also we have ^h ⁱ had our access ³ by faith into this ^{j k} grace ^l wherein we stand; and ⁴ we ^{m5} rejoice in ⁿ hope of the ^o glory of God. 3 ^p And not only so, but ^q we also ⁵ rejoice in our ^r ^s tribulations: knowing that tribulation worketh ^{t u} steadfastness; 4 and steadfastness, ^{v w} approvedness; and approvedness, hope: 5 and hope ^x putteth not to ^y shame; because the ^{z a} love of God hath been ^{b7} shed abroad in our ^c hearts through the ^d Holy Spirit which was given unto us. 6 For while we were yet ^e ^f weak, ^{g h} in due ⁱ season Christ ^{j k} died for the ^l ungodly. 7 For scarcely for a righteous man will one die: for peradventure ^m for the ⁿ good ^o man some one would even dare to die. 8 But God ^p commendeth ^q his own love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, ^r Christ died for us. 9 Much more then, being now ^s justified ^{t u8} by his ^v blood, shall we be saved ^w from the ^{x y} wrath of God through him. 10 For if, while we were ^{z a b} enemies, we were reconciled to God through the ^c death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, shall we be saved ^{d8} by his ^e life; 11 ^f and not only so, ^g but we also rejoice in God through our Lord Jē-šūs Christ, through whom we have now received ^q the reconciliation.

being ^{a b} made free from ^c sin and become ^{d e} servants to ^f God, ye have your ^{g h} fruit unto ⁱ sanctification, and ^{j k} the end ^l eternal life.
23 For the ^{m n} wages of sin is death; but the ^{o p} free gift of God is eternal life in ^q Christ Jēzšus our Lord.
7 Or are ye ^r ignorant, ^{s t u} brethren (for I speak to ^{v w} men who ^x know ^y the law), that the law hath dominion over a man for so long time as he ^z liveth? 2 For ^{a b} the woman that ^c hath a ^d husband is bound by law to the husband while he liveth; but if the husband ^e die, she is discharged from the law of the husband. 3 So then if, while the husband liveth, she be joined to another man, she shall be called an ^f adulteress: but if the husband die, she is free from the law, so that she is no adulteress, though she be joined to another man. 4 Wherefore, my brethren, ^g ye also were ^h made dead ⁱ to the law ^{j k} through the ^l body of Christ; that ye should be ^m joined to another, even to him who was raised from the dead, that we might bring forth fruit unto God. 5 For when we were in ^{n o} the flesh, the ^p sinful

* I CORINTHIANS.—Universally admitted as Paul's. A very few eccentric critics indeed who doubt everything question this Epistle. But even Baur admitted the genuineness of I Corinthians.

Date.—We know the time of year, the spring, before Pentecost—I Cor. 16:8. The place of writing was Ephesus (ibid.). It was written shortly before the close (ibid.) of his three years' stay in Ephesus—Acts 20:31. This year was probably either 56 or 57. It was during Paul's third missionary tour and a year before his final visit to Jerusalem.

Parties in Corinth.—Apparently four parties had sprung up in Corinth (I Cor. 1:12) since Paul's departure and Apollos' arrival. Apollos had left and would not return—I Cor. 12. The Pauline party and the Apollos party were drawn along lines of personal preference apparently. The Cephas party represented a doctrinal cleavage, the Judaizers, who made an improper use of the name of Peter. The Christ party probably was a reaction of a pious element against the spirit of faction that itself caused a new faction. But eventually (see chs. 10-13) there were only two parties—the Pauline party (the majority) and the anti-Pauline Judaizers (the minority). The Apollos and Christ parties apparently took Paul's side in the controversy.

Paul's Communications with the Corinthians.—Apollos himself could tell Paul much—I Cor. 16:8. The household of Chloe had told him the story of the divisions—1:11. Paul sent Timothy to them to restore order—4:17; 16:10. He purposed to come himself (4:19 ff.) and may possibly have made a short visit—II Cor. 2:2; 13:1. He had written them a letter now lost—I Cor. 5:9. The Corinthians had written Paul a letter concerning marriage (7:1), meats offered to idols (8:1), the spiritual gifts (12:1), and the resurrection—15:1. They had sent a special embassy (possibly with the letter) to see Paul—16:17. He replies with what we call "I Corinthians." Paul had finally sent Titus who was to report to him at Troas—II Cor. 2:12.

Complicated Situation at Corinth.—It was a mixed condition of affairs that called forth this great Epistle. It was a great mission church in a commercial emporium open to all the breezes of error that blow, beset by every form of immorality, torn by strife, possessed of a large number of persons with high spiritual endowments, an excitable, inflammable church. The various problems are discussed separately.

The Discussions.—The first four chapters treat this vital question. There is much passion and even indignation in Paul's protest against the misuse made of his name in the matter. He takes occasion to make a formal exposition of his conception of the Cross of Christ as the heart of the Gospel. He scouts their false, pretentious philosophy and urges the real wisdom of God.

Immoral Practices.—In chapters 5 and 6 he condemns with much vehemence the church's lackadaisical passing by a case of incest and demands the man's expulsion from the church. He charges them with going to law with each other before the heathen and with the spirit of contentiousness.

Marriage.—Chapter 7 deals with marriage and its problems as existing in Corinth. There were two parties among them. One held that all should marry. The other held that none should marry. Both were wrong. The various aspects of the matter receive discussion.

Meats offered to Idols.—Chapters 8-10 treat the grave problem (to them) of eating meat that had been presented as an offering in a heathen temple. It is a question of casuistry, and calls for a principle that applies to all casuistical problems.

Head Dress of Women in Worship.—In 11:1-16 this matter receives earnest treatment.

Misconduct in Observance of the Lord's Supper.—The excesses of the Corinthians went as far as this. Some of them actually got drunk at the Lord's table. Paul interprets the whole subject—11:17-34.

Spiritual Gifts.—Chapters 12-14. Wrangling had come in the very use of the gifts of the Holy Spirit. Love (13) is the key to the matter.

The Resurrection.—Chapter 15. The classic on the subject. He proves the fact of the resurrection of Jesus and explains the nature of the resurrection body.

10 Now ^a I ^{b c} beseech you, ^{d e f} brethren, through the ^g name of our ^h Lord Jē'sūs Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no ^{* i 1} divisions among you; but that ye be ^j perfected together in ^k the same ^l mind and in the same ^m judgment. 11 For it hath been signified unto me concerning you, my brethren, by ⁿ them that are of the ^o household of Chlōē, that there are ^p contentions among you. 12 Now this I mean, that ^q each one of you saith, I am of Paul; and I of ^r Ā-pōllōs; and I of ^{s t} Cē-phās; and I of Christ. 13 ² Is Christ divided? was Paul ^{u v w} crucified for you? or were ye ^{x y} baptized into the name of Paul? 14 ^{z 3} I thank God that I ^a baptized none of you, save ^a Cris-pūs and ^b Gā-lītūs; 15 lest

4 Let a ^a man so account of us, as of ^b c ministers of ^d Christ, and ^e f stewards of the ^g h mysteries of ⁱ God. 2 Here, moreover, it is required in stewards, that a man be found ^j faithful. 3 But with ^k me it is a very small thing that I should be ^l judged of you, or of man's ² judgment: yea, I ³ judge not mine own self. 4 For I ^l m know nothing against myself; yet am I not hereby ⁿ o justified: but he that ⁴ judgeth me is the ^p Lord. 5 Wherefore ^q judge nothing before the time, ^r until the Lord ^s come, who will both ^t u bring to ^v light the * hidden things of ^w darkness, and make ^x manifest the ^y counsels of the ^z hearts; and then shall each man ^a have his ^b praise from God.

6 Now these things, ^c brethren, ^d I have in a ^e f figure transferred to myself and ^g Å-pöl-lös for your sakes; that in us ye might ^h learn not to go beyond ⁱ the things which are ^j k written; that no one of you be ^l m puffed up ⁿ o p for the one against the other.

8 Now concerning ^{m n} things ^o sacrificed to ^p idols: We know that we all have ^{q r} knowledge. Knowledge ^{s t u} puffeth up, but ^v love ^w edifieth. 2 ^x If any man ^y thinketh that he knoweth anything, he ^z knoweth not yet as he ought to know; 3 but if any man loveth God, the same ^a is ^b known by him. 4 Concerning therefore the eating of ^c things sacrificed to idols, we know that ^d no idol is anything in the ^e world, and that ^f there is no God but one. 5 For though there be ^g that are called gods, whether in ^h heaven or on ⁱ earth; as there are gods many, and lords many; 6 yet to us there is one God, the ^j Father, ^k of whom are all things, and we unto him; and ^{l m n} one Lord, Jē-šūs Chrīst, ^o through whom are all things, and we through him. 7 Howbeit there is not in all ^p men ^q that know-disposed to go; ^a whatsoever is set before you, ^b eat, asking no question for ^c conscience' sake. 28 But ^d if any ^e man say unto you, This hath been ^f offered in ^g sacrifice, eat not, ^h for his sake that showed it, and for conscience' sake: 29 conscience, I say, not thine own, but the other's; for ⁱ why is my ^k liberty judged by another conscience? 30 ^l If I partake with ^l thankfulness, ^m why am I ⁿ evil spoken of for that for which I ^o give thanks? 31 Whether therefore ye eat, or ^p drink, or ^q whatsoever ye do, ^r do all to the ^s 'glory of God. 32 ^t Give no ^v occasion of stumbling, either to ^w Jews, or to ^x Greeks, or to ^y the church of God: 33 even as ^z I also ^a ^b please all men in all things, ^c ^d not ^e seeking mine own profit, ^f but the ^g profit of the many, that they ^h may be ⁱ saved. 1 Be ye ^j imitators of me, even as I also ^k am of ^l Christ.

2 Now ^m ⁿ I praise you that ye ^o remember me in all things, and ^p hold fast the ^q traditions, even as I delivered them to you. 3 But I would have you ^r know, that the ^s ^t head of every man is Christ; and ^u ^v the head of the ^w woman is the man; and the ^x head of Christ is ^y God. 4 Every man ^z praying or ^a ^b prophesying, having his head covered, ^c ^d dishonoreth his head. 5 But every ^e ^f woman praying or prophesying with her head unveiled dishonoreth her head; for it is one and the same thing as if she were ^u shaven. 6 For if a woman is not ^v veiled, let her also be ^w shorn: but if it is a ^x shame to a woman to be shorn or shaven, let her be veiled. 7 For a man indeed ought not to have his head veiled, forasmuch as he is the ^k ^l image and glory of God: but the woman is the glory of the man. 8 For ^m the man is not of the woman; but the woman of the man: 9 for neither was the man created for the woman; but ⁿ the woman for the man: 10 for this cause ought the woman to have a ^o sign of authority on her head, because of the ^p angels. 11 Nevertheless, neither is the woman without the man, nor the man without the woman, in the Lord. 12 For as the woman is of the man, so is the man also by the woman; but ^q all things are ^r of God. 13 ^s Judge ye ^t in yourselves: is it seemly that a woman pray unto God unveiled? 14 Doth not even ^u nature itself ^v teach you, that, if a man have long ^w hair, it is a dishonor to him? 15 But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her: for her hair is given her for a covering. 16 But if any man seemeth to be ^x contentious, ^y we have no such ^z custom, neither ^a the churches of God.

^a strangers will ^b I speak unto this people; and not even thus will they ^c hear me, saith the Lord.
22 Wherefore ^d tongues are for a ^e sign, not to them that ^f believe, but to the unbelieving: but ^g h prophesying is for a sign, not to the unbelieving, but to them that believe. 23 If therefore the whole ⁱ church be ^j assembled together and all speak with tongues, and there come in men unlearned or unbelieving, will they not say that ^k ye are ^l mad? 24 But if all prophesy, and there come in one unbelieving or unlearned, he is ^{m n} ¹ reproved by all, he is judged by all; 25 ^o ^p the secrets of his ^q heart are made ^r manifest; and so he will ^s fall down on his ^t face and ^u worship God, ^v declaring that God is ^w among you indeed.
26 ^w What is it then, ^{x y} brethren? When ye come together, ^z each one hath a ^{a b} psalm, hath a ^{c d} teaching, hath a ^e revelation, hath a tongue, hath an ^f interpretation. Let all things be done unto ^g edifying. 27 ^h If any ⁱ man speaketh in a tongue, let ^j it be by two, or at the most three, and ^k that in turn; and let one interpret: 28 but if there be no interpreter, let him keep silence in the church; and let him speak to himself, and to God. 29 And let the ^{l k} prophets speak ^m by two or three, and let the others ⁿ discern. 30 But if a revelation be

As in ^r all the churches of the ^s saints, 34 let the ^{u v} women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but ^x let them be in subjection, as also ^y saith ^z the law. 35 And if they would learn anything, let them ask their own ^a husbands at ^b home: for it is ^c shameful for a woman to speak in the church. 36 What? was it from you that the ^e word of God went forth? or came it unto you alone?

"Of the Stars" (Kōkhābhīm, ἀστροί), as Objects of Interest in themselves, no Account is made. In a small number of allusions, however, it is possible to detect current astronomical notions. The whole of the starry firmament, as a body, is called "the host of heaven" (Gen. 2:1), though that phrase does not always convey the same meaning—I Ki. 22:19; II Chr. 18:18. Of individual stars, including planets, Venus is mentioned under the name "Day Star" ("Lucifer, son of the morning," a. v. Is. 14:12). Saturn appears under the name of Chiun (Amos 5:26) a. v. and e. r. v., but A. R. v. "the Shrine." See also Acts 7:43. "Rephan," probably "Saturn"—A. C. Z. in Standard Bible Dictionary.

The Heavenly Planets excited Devotion.—Gen. 37:9; Deut. 4:19; II Ki. 23:5; Ps. 8:3-5; 19:1-4; 72:5; Eccl. 11:7, 8; Jer.

* II CORINTHIANS. — Authenticity conceded by practically all competent scholars.
Integrity questioned.—A respectable number of scholars hold that our II Corinthians really combines two of Paul's Epistles (Chapters 1-9 being a fourth letter, Chapters 10-13 a third). An interesting idea, but not proven.
A Lost Letter possible.—It is, however, possible (cf. I Cor. 5:9) that Paul wrote another letter and sent it by Titus, one sharper in tone than I Corinthians and to which he alludes in II Cor. 2:4; 7:12.
Return of Titus.—At any rate the mission of Titus was more effective than that of Timothy. Paul met him, not at Troas as he had planned, but in Macedonia (II Cor. 2:12 f.), probably in Philippi.
Date of the Epistle.—He sends Titus and two other brethren back (probably Luke and Erastus, cf. II Cor. 8:18-9:5). They may have also been the bearers of the Epistle. But at any rate the date of writing is shortly after the arrival of Titus from Corinth, probably the latter part of A. D. 56 or 57.
Joy and Sorrow.—Titus brought good news and bad news, Paul had been grieving that he had written so sharply—2:1-4; 7:5-8. But now that the majority had acquiesced, he is happy over the result—2:5-3:6; 7:8-16. But a "part" (2:5) had not taken Paul's view of the situation. The letter therefore has a double character. The first part is mainly joyous, the second chiefly sad and indignant.
Paul's Apology.—The Epistle is the most personal of all of Paul's letters and has been often called Apologia pro Vita Sua. He does make a formal defence of his work and gives a magnificent presentation of the grandeur of the New Testament Ministry.

Style.—The passion of Paul's heart is reflected in the long and broken sentences which characterize the letter. It pulses with power and he is not careful to follow formal rhetoric.
Revelation of Paul's Personality.—More of Paul's real self is manifest in this Epistle than is to be found anywhere else. The latest volcanic fires have burst forth. Timothy (1:1) sends greetings also, but it is Paul's experiences that are told.
Preacher's Handbook.—It is a great discussion of a true preacher's problems and so becomes a minister's vade-mecum.
Paul's Narrow Escape.—In 1:3-11. Paul tells of his recent nearness to death while at Ephesus due either to the mob or sickness or both.
Failure to go to Corinth.—He was charged with fickleness (1:12-2:4) because he had not come to them first before going into Macedonia as he had originally planned (1:15 f.), but had changed his mind—I Cor. 15:5.
Further Personal Explanations.—He is glad to set before his friends his real attitude towards the offender and the church, now that the majority has sustained Paul's view—2:5-7:16. He opens his heart and his mouth to them (6:11) and begs them to open their hearts to him—7:2. Throughout this discussion Paul maintains a position of great dignity with real sympathy.
The Collection.—The formal discussion (Chaps. 8 and 9) of this important matter furnishes a powerful exposition of the whole question of beneficence. He wishes to bring to a successful conclusion the promises of the Achaian churches for this object, the great collection for the poor saints in Jerusalem from the four provinces of Asia, Galatia, Macedonia, Achaia. Achaia had been the first to promise, but is the last to pay.

Apostolic Authority.—The tone of Chapters 10–13 is so very bitter in places that some explanation is needed. It is found in the stubborn resistance of the Cephas party of Judaizers to the authority of Paul in Corinth. The Apollos and Christ parties had apparently disappeared. The majority was with Paul. He had claimed his apostolic authority before—I Cor. 4:21; 5:3–5. The Judaizers resented this claim. They retorted that Paul was acting outside of his jurisdiction (II Cor. 10:14), that he was not a real apostle (not one of the Twelve like Peter, 11:5; 12:11), that he was afraid to take pay because he was not a true apostle (11:7 ff.), that in reality he was indirectly after money for himself in this collection for the poor saints in Jerusalem (12:14–18), that he was afraid to come to Corinth anyhow (12:14; 13:1 ff.), and took it out in threatening letters—10:9 f.

ⁿ wisdom but in the ^o grace of God, we behaved ourselves in the ^p world, and more abundantly to you-ward. 13 For we ^q write no other things unto you, than what ye ^r read or even acknowledge, and I hope ye will acknowledge ^s unto the end: 14 as also ye did acknowledge us in part, that we are your glorying, even as ye also are ours, in ^t the day of our ^u Lord Jē-šūs.

15 And in this ^v confidence I was ^w minded to ^x come first unto you, that ye might have a second ^y ^z ⁴ benefit; 16 and by you to ^a pass into ^b Māç-ē-dō-nī-ā, and again from Māç-ē-dō-nī-ā to come unto you, and of you to be ^c set forward on my ^d ^e journey ^f unto ^g Jū-dæ-ā: 17 When I therefore was thus minded, did I show fickleness? or the things that ^h I purpose, do I purpose ⁱ according to the flesh, that with me there should be the yea yea and the nay nay? 18 But as ^j ^k God is faithful, ^l our ^m word toward you is not yea and nay.

The Indignation of Paul is thoroughly aroused.—He answers the charges and makes counter ones. He calls the Judaizers false apostles and ministers of Satan (11:13 ff.). He has not been just "excusing" himself to them (12:19). He has remained away to spare them (1:23; 12:21). When he comes again, he will not spare (13:2), but will "deal sharply" if necessary (13:10).

Effect of the Epistle.—He waited awhile, went round about Illyricum (Rom. 15:19), and later spent three months peaceably at Corinth—Acts 20:3. To all appearances the Cephas party of Judaizers vanished. Peter had had no part in this strife and was in no way responsible for their use of his name. II Corinthians is a powerful document and evidently made a tremendous impression.

^a grace also. 8 ^b I speak ^c not by way of commandment, but as proving through the earnestness of others the ^d sincerity also of your ^e love. 9 For ye ^f know ^g the grace of our ^h Lord Jē'sūs Christ, that, ⁱ though he was rich, ^j yet for your sakes he became poor, ^k ^l that ye through his poverty might become rich. 10 And herein I ^m give ⁿ my judgment: for this is expedient for you, who were the first to make a ^o beginning ^p a ^q year ago, not only to do, but also to ^r will. 11 But now complete the ^s doing also; that as there was the ^t readiness to will, so ^u there may be the completion also out of your ability. 12 For if the readiness is there, it is ^v acceptable ^w according as a ^x man hath, not according as ^y he hath not. 13 For I say not this that others may be eased and ye ^z distressed; 14 but by ^a equality: your abundance ^b being a supply at this present time for ^c their want, that their abundance also may become a supply for your want; that there may be equality: 15 as it is ^b written, ¹ He that

* GALATIANS: Authenticity.—Accepted by all critics save extreme Dutch school.

Readers.—Very doubtful whether by Galatia (Gal. 1:2) and Galatians (3:1) Paul means the real Galatians (Celts) of North Galatia, the Lycaonian and Phrygian Christians alone (South Galatia, scene of Paul's first tour), or the Roman province as a whole. Each view has strong advocates, though the North Galatian view may still be accepted as a working hypothesis. That is the most natural way to take the language of Luke in Acts 16:6; 18:23. But it is even possible that Luke may use the term "region of Galatia" in the ethnographic sense like Phrygia, Lycaonia, and Pisidia, while Paul may have the Roman province in mind. If so, the matter becomes all the more difficult to decide. But this point of geography is not very material after all.

Date.—The date of the Epistle is involved in the character of the readers addressed. If they were the inhabitants of South Galatia, the first ("former") time when he was with them would be the time of the first missionary tour. He may indeed have been there a second time, though not necessarily so. If true, this would be during the second tour. If, however, the true Galatians are in mind, the second tour would be the occasion of the first visit (Acts 16:6), and the third visit that of the second (Acts 18:23). In that case the date would be much later. The Epistle is therefore dated all the way from A. D. 50 to 57. In lieu of anything decisive, the doctrinal situation may be appealed to. It logically falls between II Corinthians and Romans. Tentatively the fall of A. D. 56 or 57 may be suggested and the place of composition Corinth.

Judaizers in Galatia.—After the Jerusalem Conference Paul distributed the decrees on his travels—Acts 16:4. The trouble in Galatia may have sprung up at once from Jews in the Galatian churches or may have been due, as is most likely true, to some active emissaries from the Jerusalem Judaizers—Gal. 3:1. The movement took on large proportions rapidly.

Appeal to Paul.—Some of those loyal to Paul, as at Corinth, evidently sent word to Paul concerning the situation. If it came to him after his return to Corinth in the fall of 56 or 57, he was in a proper frame of mind to apprehend the issue involved.

The Issue at Stake.—The very heart of the Gospel was in the controversy. It was whether Christianity was sufficient in itself or must be supplemented by Judaism, whether Jewish ceremonialism was to be added to the spiritual gospel of liberty preached by Paul. He had faced this issue squarely at the Jerusalem Conference and had carried his point—Acts 15; Gal. 2:1–10. But it is necessary to make a fight over again. Paul conceives that the truth of the Gospel is at stake—Gal. 2:5. He calls the doctrine of the Judaizers "a different gospel," really no gospel—1:6 f. He pronounces anathema on these teachers—1:8 f.

Appeal to the Galatians.—He calls to them to come back (1:6; 3:1) and to be true to the gospel of liberty (5:1). He throws his very heart into this passionate plea—4:12–20.

Defence of his Apostleship.—That had been challenged. He was called by the Judaizers not a true Apostle. Hence Paul affirms his apostleship (1:1–5) and shows how he derived it from Christ and independently of the Twelve (1:11–24), but he was their acknowledged equal as shown in the Jerusalem Conference itself—2:1–10. He had indeed rebuked Peter to his face at Antioch—2:11–21.

The Law and the Gospel.—The law had its place, the ceremonial law, but it was that of the tutor or pedagogue before Christ came—3:1-22. It is not needed now that the Teacher Himself has come—3:23-4:7. Paul is afraid of them, these Gentile Christians observing Jewish ceremonies—4:8-11. He reminds them of the allegory of Sarah and Hagar—4:21-31. Freedom, not License.—They must not misunderstand him. He does not wish them to be entangled again in a yoke of bondage (5:1-12) and so come from grace under law—5:4. Nor does he wish them to make freedom an occasion to the flesh to go into sin—5:13-26. The fruit of the Spirit and of the flesh are very different in quality. Mutual Help.—They must help, not hinder, each other—6:1-10.

The Cross, not Circumcision.—The cross of Christ is the main thing, not the ceremony of circumcision—6:11-18. This added summary is in Paul's own hand (6:11) and he pleads for loyalty on the ground of his sufferings for Christ—6:17. Powerful Apologetic.—This Epistle is vehement and passionate and presents the spiritual conception of Christianity over against Jewish ceremonialism. It met that issue grandly. It was also the battle cry of Luther in the Reformation. To-day it is one of the bulwarks against the radical criticism of the New Testament.

* EPHESIANS: Genuineness.—This great Epistle has been attacked by a considerable number of German scholars, but on insufficient grounds. The difficulties vanish when the letter is properly understood.

Date.—Same date as Colossians (Col. 4:7 f.; Eph. 6:21 f.) and Philemon (10, 13). About A. D. 62 or 63.

Place.—From Rome—Acts 28:30 f.; Eph. 3:1.

Destination.—In the oldest MSS. in Eph. 1:1 the words "at Ephesus" are wanting. In Col. 4:16 Paul speaks of an Epistle sent to the church at Laodicea. Marcion calls the Epistle which we call "to the Ephesians" the one "to the Laodiceans." There are no personal items in the Ephesian letter, though Paul was three years in Ephesus—Acts 20:31. It seems clear therefore that the Ephesian letter was not addressed solely to the saints at Ephesus, though a copy went there. That copy is the one that came to be copied most because of the prominence of the church in Ephesus.

Circular Letter.—It seems to be a general appeal addressed to the churches of Asia and sent to various churches. The Colossian letter, though designed specially for the Colossian Church, was also to be sent to Laodicea—Col. 4:16. The Apostle may have had the Ephesians chiefly in mind, but purposely wrote in general terms so as to suit the letter to its mission. Cf. the Letters to the Seven Churches (of Asia) in Rev. 2 and 3, where each letter is definite and particular in description.

Gnosticism.—The same doctrinal issue is under discussion here as in Colossians. See that Epistle for brief statement about Gnosticism. There is here less eagerness and passion perhaps, but more comprehensiveness and sobriety in the treatment.

Christ is emphasized in contrast to the Gnostic notion of æons. In Ephesians the dignity of the Church as the body of Christ is set forth with great power.

General Conception of the Church.—The general conception of the body of Christ is natural in an Epistle designed for general circulation. In harmony with that idea Paul expounds the comprehensiveness of the body of Christ as including both Gentiles and Jews. Another figure for this idea is "the Commonwealth of Israel"—Eph. 2:12. "One New Man"—2:15. "One Body"—2:16. "Household of God"—2:19. "A Holy Temple in the Lord"—2:21. "The Church, which is His Body"—1:22 (cf. 5:23, &c.). Paul here grasps the Kingdom of God as parallel in a sense with the world Kingdom of Rome, but infinitely grander in scope and power.

Election includes both Jews and Gentiles.—This conception is not new with Paul (cf. Rom. 9-11), but is nowhere put with more force than in Eph. 1:3-14. The point of view here is that of thanksgiving to God for his elective grace.

True Conception of Christ.—In opposition to the Gnostic degradation of Christ, he exalts Him to His true place—1:15-23. This is one of the two great prayers in the Epistle, a prayer for spiritual comprehension.

The Spiritual Revelation.—The tremendous change wrought by Christ in both Jews and Gentiles is discussed in Chapter 2.

Paul's Mission to the Gentiles.—He expounds his knowledge of "the mystery of Christ" (3:4), how the Gentiles are included in the Church 3:1-13.

Prayer for Knowledge of Christ.—The Gnostic laid much stress on "knowledge." The highest knowledge is that of Christ. Paul here (3:14-21) makes a marvellous prayer.

Unity.—This passage (4:1-16) reminds one of Christ's prayer for unity in John ch. 17.

Heathen Vices.—Paul faithfully warns the Gentile Christians against lapsing into their former lax manner of life—4:17-5:20.

Domestic and Social Life.—As in Colossians so here (4:21-6:9) he discusses carefully and earnestly the duties of Christians in the various stations of life.

Final Appeal.—In 6:10-20 Paul pleads powerfully for steadfastness in the midst of the Gnostic heresies.

Grandeur of the Epistle.—Nowhere has Paul, or anyone else, produced a greater treatment of the highest themes than in Eph. 1-3.

*DOCTRINE.—In the Gospels "Teaching" is the Word used to express what Jesus taught, not yet formulated into Specific Doctrines. See "Teaching of Jesus"—Lu. 2:21. The Apostles had the Living Word and the Following Generation the Inspired Utterances of Apostles and Spirit-filled Men. Doctrine in its Usual Sense occurs only in the Later Pastoral Epistles—I Tim. 1:3; 1:10; 4:6, 13; 6:3; II Tim. 3:6; Titus 1:9; 2:7, 10. Previous to this, the Word "Doctrine" is used chiefly

* PHILIPPIANS: Ties with Philippi.—Paul had presented the Gospel in Philippi and gathered there his first European Church—Acts 16:11-40. There Lydia lived. There he had been in prison. It was the home of Luke, apparently, who had been so much with Paul. Timothy, now with Paul, was dear to them. He associates Timothy with him in the greeting—1:1. They had been very ready and liberal in the great collection (II Cor. 8:1-4; 9:1 f.; Phil. 1:6), as well as generous to Paul.

Fresh Proof of the Love of the Philippians for Paul.—They had several times sent relief for Paul's want when he was in Thessalonica—Phil. 4:16; indeed, when he departed from Macedonia, no other church had supplied his needs—4:15. He had later apparently received help from other churches also—II Cor. 11:8 f.; 12:13. He refused any help from the church at Corinth—I Cor. 9:18 ff.; II Cor. 11:7, 9; 12:13. They had now again remembered Paul in a most substantial way, and he appreciates it much—Phil. 4:14-18. He had not asked for the gift—4:17.

Paul's Condition.—He is a prisoner, but has his own hired house in Rome—Phil. 1:13; Acts 28:30 f. He has apparently been in Rome some time—Acts 28:30 f. He is allowed to preach the Gospel unhindered—Acts 28:31; even in the Praetorian Guard (Phil. 1:13 f.) and to members of Caesar's numerous household—4:22. He is permitted to see his friends (Acts 28:30) and so to keep in communication with the work in the east.

Paul's Heart turns East again.—When he wrote Romans from Corinth, he was full of ambition to go to Rome and to Spain—Rom. 15:17-29. Now that he is at last in Rome, a prisoner, he longs to go back to the east. He hopes to get free and come to see the Philippians again—Phil. 1:25. The door to Spain for the present was closed and fresh troubles were brewing in the east. The care of all the churches was still on his heart.

Visit of Epaphroditus.—Among his other visitors was Epaphroditus from Philippi with bountiful tokens of the love of the church there—Phil. 4:18. He fell sick nigh unto death (2:27), and the Philippians heard of it—2:26. Epaphroditus learned of their anxiety about him and longed to go back on his recovery—2:26. Hence Paul sends this Epistle by him—2:25.

Genuineness.—Few scholars question the Pauline authorship of this letter. It has the stamp of reality in it.

Date.—It was written during the first Roman imprisonment, i.e., between A.D. 60 and 63. Some scholars would put the imprisonment A.D. 58-61. What is less clear is the precise period of this imprisonment. Most scholars put it at the close and after the writing of Philemon, Colossians, and Ephesians. That is possible, but by no means certain. He was expecting to be set free when he wrote Philippians (Phil. 1:25; 2:24) and Philemon (22). Luke seems not to be with him when he wrote Philippians (2:20), as he was when he wrote Philemon (23) and Colossians (4:14). But his absence may have been only temporary.

Doctrinal Position.—The Epistle is not distinctly a doctrinal document, but in chapter 3 there is an echo of the Judaizing controversy (cf. the Corinthians Epistle, Galatians, and Romans). On the other hand in chapter 2 there is a forecast of the coming Christological controversy (cf. Colossians and Keynote.—The chief note of the Epistle is Joy—1:4, 18; 2:17; 3:1; 4:1, &c.). One may compare the song at midnight in the Philippian jail—Acts 16:25.

Spiritual Discernment.—This was a ground of Thanksgiving about them, and Paul prays that they may have even more of it—1:1-11.

Good out of Evil.—The bonds of Paul had been used for the furtherance of the Gospel in Rome—1:12-18. Paul is glad.

Life or Death.—He has come to be anxious to depart and be with Christ, but he has work yet to do for Christ. Hence he is confident of freedom—1:19-26.

9 And this ^a I ^b pray, that ^c your ^d love may ^e abound yet more and more in ^f knowledge and all discernment; 10 so that ye may ^h ⁱ approve the things that are excellent; that ye may be ^j sincere and void of ^k ^l offence unto ^m ⁿ the day of ^o Christ; 11 being filled with the ^p ^q ^r fruits of ^s righteousness, which are through Jē'sūs Christ, unto the ^t ^u glory and ^v praise of God.

* COLOSSIANS: Date.—The date is the same as that of Philemon and Ephesians. Tychicus was the bearer of the Ephesian (Eph. 6:21 f.) letter and the Colossian (4:7 f.) letter. Cf. Ephesian 10 and Col. 4:8. It belongs to the year A. D. 62 or 63.

Genuineness.—The school of Baur rejects it and considers it a late condensation of Ephesians. But the new knowledge of early Gnostic tendencies has removed the point of Baur's criticism. It is the work of Paul beyond a doubt.

Relation to Ephesians.—The manifest likeness to Ephesians in subject matter, general arrangement, style, and vocabulary is easily explained. The two Epistles were written about the same time and dispatched together. Probably Colossians was written first to meet a specific situation in Colossæ. Then the Ephesian letter was composed while the same theme ient Gnosticism which became rampant in the second century. These philosophers combined the speculation of the Greek Pythagoras with Persian mysticism and Essenic Judaism. They held matter to be essentially evil. Hence the origin of the world was a grave problem since God was good. They conceived a series of intermediate agents or æons to relieve God of the burden of the evil world. They at once had trouble with the person of Christ in their system when any of them accepted Christianity. They solved the matter by making Jesus one of the æons. In morals they had two extremes. One went to license, the other to asceticism.

Christological Controversy.—At once therefore a new heresy arose and a fresh peril to the Gospel faced Paul in his imprisonment. He had feared some such trouble long ago—Acts 20:29 f.. He throws himself into the matter heart and soul, as he did in the Judaizing controversy. Then he wrought out a clear view of spiritual religion. Now he grasps fully the deity of Jesus, and relates the Person of Christ to the order of the Universe. We have to thank the Gnostic for being the occasion of this great contribution to the knowledge of Christ.

News of the Colossian Christians.—Paul is grateful for the knowledge which he has of them through Epaphras—1:3-8.

World Relations of Christ.—Jesus was a man, but is more than a man or men. He in truth is the Son of God, partakes of the very nature of God, is the Creator and sustainer of the physical universe, is the head of the spiritual realm, the church general, the body of Christ—1:9-23. The primacy of Christ over all other spiritual beings disposes of the Gnostic philosophy and asserts the real deity of Christ. He is head of both the physical and the spiritual realms.

The Mystery of Christ.—The Gnostics talked much about their "mysteries." No mystery is comparable to "the mystery of God, even Christ, in whom are all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge hidden"—1:24-2:7.

The Philosophy of the Cross.—The Gnostics had a false philosophy which beguiled many. The cross of Christ is the true philosophy of grace and of life (2:8-15). The Docetic Gnostics denied the reality of Christ's body. Paul affirmed the union of the Godhead with the body of Jesus—2:9. The Corinthian Gnostics separated Jesus from the Christ. Paul contended for their identity—2:6.

Supremacy of Christ.—The Gnostics worshipped angels and went off into idle speculation. The antidote for that idolatry is to maintain Jesus as head over all—2:16-19.

Ascetic Rules.—One wing of the Gnostics, considering all matter to be evil, sought to live aloof from the world under the bondage of rules. Christianity put the spirit in control—2:20-23.

License.—The other wing of the Gnostics opened the flood gates of license and held that matter, though evil, could not harm the soul. Therefore the body had full license to indulge itself. Paul replied that the body must be put in subjection to the will of Christ—3:1-17.

Social Aspects of Christianity.—Already it had become all-vital matter that the various classes in social life should fulfil their mission in accord with the mind of Christ. Paul sets forth this ideal—3:18-4:1.

Attic Salt.—Wisdom in speech was needed by Paul and all teachers—4:2-6.

Personal Matters.—This Epistle is peculiarly rich in those delightful personal details that Paul knew so well how to put in his letters. They give life and color to the Epistle—4:7-18.

* I THESSALONIANS: Genuineness.—Now accepted by nearly all critics of all schools as the work of Paul. Baur's attack on it has been overthrown.

Date.—A. D. 52. Earliest of Paul's Epistles and one of the earliest books of the New Testament. Cf. Epistle of James and Mark's Gospel. Date not long after Paul left Athens, while in Corinth, after Silas and Timothy came there from Thessalonica—Acts 18:1, 5; I Thess. 3:6. The date is fixed also by the coming of Gallio as Proconsul of Achaia—Acts 18:12. Paul had already been there a year and a half—18:11.

Recipients.—"The Church of the Thessalonians"—I Thess. 1:1. This church was founded by Paul during his second missionary tour—Acts 17:1-9; I Thess. 1:9 f. It was in a great commercial city of Macedonia (Thessalonica the modern Salonica) and had already become "an example to all that believe in Macedonia and in Achaia"—I Thess. 1:7. He associates Silas and Timothy (1:1) in the salutation because of their connection with them.

Occasion.—Silas and Timothy (Acts 18:5) had brought good news from Thessalonica—I Thess. 1:6. But needless misapprehension had arisen, since Paul's departure, concerning the Second Coming of Jesus. He had taught them the certainty of that coming, but the uncertainty of the time of the event—I Thess. 5:1-11. This misconception had led some to neglect their regular work, a thing against which he had expressly warned them—4:11. Hence it was necessary to write them. It is possible also that the Macedonians sent a letter to Paul by Silas and Timothy.

Purpose.—Paul had been long anxious to revisit Thessalonica, but had been hindered—2:18. The longing was material—3:6. He still prayed that he might come—3:11. Meanwhile he sends a message to cheer them as they had cheered him—2:17; 13:7. They do not need instruction about affliction (3:4) and love of the brethren (4:9), but he wishes them to abound yet more and more and to walk becomingly (4:10 ff.), as he charged them while with them—4:1 f. He aims to confirm them in the Gospel which he had already preached to them that it might not be in vain—2:1, 4, 8, 13; 3:9 f. He had sent Timothy unto them to avert this peril (3:5) as he now writes for the same purpose. He expects the Epistle to be read to all—5:27.

Contents.—The first chapter is an appreciation of the work of grace among the Thessalonians. The second chapter explains and defends Paul's preaching and conduct while with them. The third chapter shows his present concern about them. In the fourth chapter he exhorts them to be pure, to be mindful of their own business, to understand that those that are asleep will rise at the resurrection before those who are alive are changed. They will not be left in the graves. In the fifth chapter Paul repeats his teaching about the uncertainty of the time of the Second Coming to Christ and exhorts to orderly life.

Character.—The Epistle is informal and discursive, but perfectly natural and true to the historical situation. It is meant for the good of all (5:27) and so is a church letter. As the first of Paul's Epistles it is interesting as an exposition of his theology. It may be compared with the first extended report of an address of his—Acts 13:16-41. In this address the kernel of Paul's later theology (cf. Galatians and Romans) is found—(See "Justification by Faith," Rom. 4:25)—Acts 13:38 f. So faith is emphasized in I Thessalonians, "you that believe" (2:13); "your faith" (3:6); "your work of faith" (1:3); &c. The development of Paul's teaching as traced in his Epistles is in harmony with his great experience of grace and the great message which he had for men. Cf. I Thess. 5:9 f.
Eschatology.—The Second Coming of Christ is discovered much in this Epistle because Paul had spoken especially about it while there. He had been misunderstood and so has to explain himself. This was a favorite topic in the early apostolic message (as in the later books also. Cf. II Peter, I John, Revelation). It will recur in Paul's later Epistles (I Cor. 7:31; II Cor. 5:1 ff.; I Tim. 5:14). The prominence of eschatological matters in I and II Thessalonians is due to the incident of his stress on that subject at Thessalonica, not to any essential change of view on the subject by Paul.

* II THESSALONIANS: Genuineness.—Rejected by some who accept I Thessalonians on the ground that it is an imitation of that Epistle and because of the Apocalyptic passage in II Thess. 2:3 ff. about the Man of Sin. But the objection is not sustained. Paul came in vital touch with the worship of the Roman Emperor in Thessalonica. Naturally, according to the Jewish fashion of the time, he adopts Apocalyptic imagery on that subject.

Date.—Not very long after the reception of First Thessalonians. Either later in A. D. 52 or more probably early in A. D. 53.

Occasion.—Paul evidently received further news after they had read his first letter. Some had refused his teaching on the subject of the Second Coming of Christ. They had misunderstood him at first and now preferred the misunderstanding to the explanation. Indeed, some went so far as to forge an "Epistle as from" Paul to show that "the day of the Lord is just at hand"—II Thess. 2:3. He must try once more therefore. He gives a "token" by which his genuine Epistle may be recognized—3:17.

Tone.—This second Epistle is sharper in tone than the first. He does beseech them that they be not quickly shaken from their minds (2:1 f.) and expects them to "stand fast, and hold the traditions which ye were taught" (II Thess. 2:15), but he now "commands" (3:4, 6, 12) as he did while with them—3:10.

Authority of the Epistle.—Paul asserts the authority of his Epistle to those who had admitted his preaching as authoritative, "whether by word or by Epistle of ours" (2:15), "our word by this Epistle" (3:14). He makes obedience to his teaching a test of fellowship in the church, for he spoke "in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ" (3:6, 12, 14). He has confidence in their acquiescence—3:4.

Contents.—The first chapter gives his grounds of thanksgiving about them (and they are many and real) and his prayer for their further growth. The second chapter takes up at once the problem of the Second Coming, about which many of them are still in trouble and has a special thanksgiving because of their election and sanctification. The third chapter faces the practical issue with the recalcitrant who persist in error and idleness. They are to be disciplined.

The Man of Sin.—After Paul's disclaimer (2:1 f.) that he taught the immediate coming of Christ, he gives a further reason for the uncertainty of the time in the previous apostasy and manifestation of the Man of Sin—2:3 ff. The description of this one as "he that sitteth in the temple of God, setting himself forth as God" (2:5), seems to point to the worship of the Roman Emperor. Paul reminds them of his teaching on this subject while with them—2:5. The language, like all apocalyptic language (cf. Mt. chs. 24, 25 and Rev.), is obscure, but clearly Paul means to teach the certainty of Christ's coming and the uncertainty of the time.

*I TIMOTHY: Timothy's Connection with Paul.—Few of Paul's friends and helpers were more constantly with him than Timothy. He was converted during Paul's first tour while at Lystra, the home of Timothy—I Tim. 1:2; Acts 14:8; 16:1. He joins Paul during the second tour (Acts 16:1), having already won a good name. Though his father was a Greek, yet because his mother was a Jewess, he was circumcised to avoid friction. He is with Paul at Philippi (Acts 16:11 ff.), at Beroea (17:14), possibly Athens (17:15; I Thess. 3:2), at Thessalonica without Paul (I Thess. 3:6), at Corinth with Paul (Acts 18:5), at Ephesus in the third tour (I Cor. 4:17), sent to Corinth by Paul (ibid. 16:10), in Macedonia with Paul (II Cor. 1:1), in Rome with Paul (Phil. 1:1; 2:19), exhorted by Paul to remain at Ephesus (I Tim. 1:2), longed for by Paul in Rome before his death (II Tim. 4:9). He is with Paul when he writes to the Thessalonian Epistles (I Thess. 1:1; II Thess. 1:1), II Corinthians (1:1), Romans (16:21), Philippians (1:1), Philemon (1), Colossians (1:1). He himself receives two of Paul's Epistles.

Timothy and the Work in Asia.—The church at Ephesus had great spiritual leadership—Aquila, Apollos, Paul, Timothy, John. Timothy was an evangelist (II Tim. 4:5) and was in some sense Paul's representative in the missionary work in Asia—I Tim. 1:3.

Four Groups of Paul's Epistles.—1. First and Second Thessalonians A. D. 52 and 53. They deal largely with problems of eschatology. 2. First Corinthians, Second Corinthians, Galatians, Romans, A. D. 56–58. They discuss mainly great doctrinal questions, particularly justification by faith (over against the position of the Judaizers). 3. Philippians, Philemon, Colossians, Ephesians, A. D. 61–63. Christology, or the Person of Christ comes to the front as opposed to the Gnostic heresy. 4. First Timothy, Titus, Second Timothy, A. D. 66–68. Pastoral and ecclesiastical problems concern Paul here.

Style of the Fourth Group.—There is a rather marked difference in style between this group and the others. Indeed each group has a style due to the topics discussed. Style is a function of the subject, a mark of the man, and varies with the man's age. Cf. Milton and Shakespeare. The style of the Pastoral Epistles is contemplative and discursive, as one would expect in an old man writing to young preachers.

Genuineness of this Group.—With most scholars the Pastoral Epistles stand or fall together, though a few accept Titus and II Timothy and reject I Timothy. Some scholars admit Pauline fragments in those Epistles and claim that they were worked over by a later hand. Others reject them entirely as spurious. There are difficulties connected with this group of a special nature due in particular to the breaking off of the story in Acts. Some few scholars accept the Epistles and place this group during the period of the first imprisonment of Paul in Caesarea and Rome. But most of those who accept the letters as genuine consider that Paul was set free in Rome before A. D. 64. They are the most doubtful of Paul's Epistles, but the arguments for their genuineness on in this region (bishop, elder, deacon). But in the Pastoral Epistles bishop and elder are still one and the same—Acts 20:17, 28; Titus 1:5, 7; I Tim. 3:1; 5:17. The ecclesiastical situation in Ephesus is not beyond its probable development in A. D. 67.

"God our Saviour."—In the salutation (1:1 f.) occurs this expression, a common one in the Pastoral Epistles.

Purpose of the Epistle.—It is stated in—1:3–11. It is that Timothy may correct the false teaching now rife in Ephesus. It is a serious undertaking for a comparatively young man in so great a center of sin and error.

Paul's own Career an Example to Timothy.—Paul seemed a more unpromising agent for Christ than Timothy. If God used Paul, Timothy need not quail—1:12–17.

Prophecies about Timothy.—High hopes were wrapt up in Timothy. He had Hymenæus and Alexander to warn him—1:18–20.

Directions about Public Prayer.—He is not resentful against "kings"—2:1–8.

Directions for the Women in Public Worship.—In contrast to the conduct of some in Ephesus—2:9–15.

Qualifications of Bishops.—3:1–7.

Qualifications of Deacons.—3:8–13. The reference to "women" in verse 11 is ambiguous, whether he means "women" simply, women or deaconesses, or wives of the deacons.

Conduct in the House of God.—One reason for his writing now to Timothy (3:14–16) is this.

The Preacher and Heresy.—4:1–11. Careful description of the ascetic and speculative tendencies of these Gnostics.

Timothy's Self-improvement.—Devotion to study and progress—4:12–16.

Social Problems in the Church Life.—Few things try a pastor more than these matters. The ages, the sexes, the officials, the servants, the sick, the poor, all test the mettle of the minister—5:1–6:19. Many a preacher falls into one or the other of these pitfalls.

Appeal to Timothy.—Paul closes with a passionate appeal to Timothy to be faithful to his trust ("deposit")—6:20 f.

the whole outweigh those against it. The genius of Paul the aged is manifest here. His spirit is softened, not broken, by age. He is still the masterful leader and the alert counsellor. Wisdom is the dominant note of Paul's teaching in this group.

Date.—Granting that Paul was set free before A. D. 64, the date of I Timothy belongs to the intervening time before his second imprisonment. The date of Paul's death is not absolutely certain. The most probable time is in A. D. 68, shortly before the death of Nero (June, A. D. 68). Some scholars contend that Paul was put to death in A. D. 64 in connection with the persecution growing out of the burning of Rome. Something can be said for that position, but it is not so probable as the one above. Somewhere between A. D. 64 and 68, therefore, I Timothy was written, probably in later summer or early fall of A. D. 67 (or 66).

Paul in Macedonia.—Paul appears to be in Macedonia at the time of the writing of the Epistle—I Tim. 1:3. He had probably come east on his release as he had planned (Philemon 22), and had then gone west to Spain. Now he is in the east again, and for the last time. He had touched at Miletus—II Tim. 4:20. Whether he actually went on to Ephesus or saw Timothy at Miletus is not certain. But he stopped also at Troas—II Tim. 4:13.

Heresies.—When Paul delivered his farewell discourse to the Ephesian elders at Miletus on his way to Jerusalem (Acts 20:29 f.), he had predicted the coming of "grievous wolves," and men should arise who would teach perverse things. The Epistle to the Colossians and Ephesians discussed the Gnostic heresy that had already come. The matter seems to be in a rather more developed state in I Timothy. Paul is particularly anxious that Timothy shall be able to withstand this dangerous form of error. The future of Christianity gives Paul grave concern.

Ecclesiology.—In I Timothy two well-defined sets of officers appear (cf. also Phil. 1:1). It has been objected by some that this sort of ecclesiastical growth did not come till the second century. But as already shown, the two sets of church officers (bishops and deacons) are found in Philippi. By the time of Ignatius, in the second century, three sets of officers are seen

* II TIMOTHY: Paul in Rome again.—Why he is in prison we do not know. No Luke has recorded this story. He may have been arrested at Nicopolis on the representation of some professional informer. It was now a crime to be a Christian, since Nero had charged the Christians with burning Rome. He has apparently been in Rome some time—II Tim. 1:15 ff.

First Stage of the Trial over.—At the first defence (II Tim. 4:16 f.) no one stood by him but the Lord Jesus. But he was delivered out of the mouth of the lion.

But Death certain.—He cherishes no false illusions in the matter. He is going to the heavenly Kingdom—4:18.

Paul's Swan-song.—This is therefore Paul's last message. It has been often called his Swan-song.

Date.—Probably in late spring of A. D. 68. An earlier date is advocated by some.

Bereft of Friends.—It is not as it was when Paul was in Rome before. There he had many visitors. Now few are brave enough to risk a visit to his dungeon (no longer a hired house). Onesiphorus was loyal (II Tim. 1:16), but Demas forsook Luke (4:10); not to mention many from Asia—1:15. He was a doomed man and even his friends were afraid.

Faithfulness of Luke.—He alone was by his side (4:11), though he had other friends still in Rome—4:21.

Paul turns to Timothy for Sympathy.—He had done much for Timothy (cf. I Timothy). Now the old preacher appeals to the young preacher. It was apparently not in vain (Heb 13:23), for Timothy may have gotten into prison himself by coming to Paul's help.

Where was Timothy?—He may have been still in Ephesus, but the mission of Tychicus in II Tim. 4:12 rather implies that he was no longer there. He was still in the east.

Paul's Interest in the Work.—The great Apostle keeps his hand upon his work to the end. He has sent messengers to different parts of the world (4:10, 12). Some one of his messengers probably bore this message to Timothy.

Paul's Love for Timothy.—1:1 f.

Timothy's Great Inheritance.—His pious ancestry and training (1:3-5).

Timothy's Gift.—1:6 f.

Not to be ashamed of Jesus nor of Paul.—Paul not ashamed of Christ. Some from Asia are ashamed of Paul—1:8-18.

^a saved us, and ^b called us with a ^c holy calling, ^d not according to our ^e works, but according to his own ^f purpose and ^h grace, which was given us in ⁱ Christ Jē'sūs ¹ before ^k times eternal, 10 but ^l hath now been ^m manifested by the ⁿ ^o appearing of our ^p Saviour Christ Jē'sūs, who ^q abolished ^r death, and brought ^s ^t life and ^u ^v immortality to ^w light through the ^x ^y gospel, 11 ^z whereunto ¹ I was appointed a ² ³ preacher, and an ^a apostle, and a ^b teacher. 12 For which cause I ^c ^d suffer also these things: yet ^e I am not ^f ashamed; for I ^g ^h know him ⁱ whom I have ^j believed, and I am ^k persuaded that he is able to ^l guard ^m that which I have committed unto him against ⁿ that ^o day. 13 ^p Hold the ^q pattern of ^r ^s sound words ^t which thou hast heard from me, in ^u faith and ^v love which is in Christ Jē'sūs. 14 ^w That good thing which was committed unto thee guard through the ^x Holy Spirit which ^y dwelleth in us.

* TITUS: Luke and Titus.—It is curious that Titus is not mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles, though he was such a trusted friend of Paul. Prof. A. Souter, of Oxford, has suggested that probably Titus is a brother of Luke and hence this silence. Some proof for this idea occurs in II Cor. 12:18. "I exhorted Titus, and I sent the brother with him." That in Greek naturally means Titus's brother. Cf. also II Cor. 8:18. Titus was a Greek and so was Luke. It is an entirely possible position.

Titus and Paul.—He first appears with Paul in Jerusalem at the Conference (Gal. 2:1, 3) about A. D. 50. He is one of Paul's Greek converts (Titus 1:4) during the first tour and was not circumcised. The fight for Gentile freedom from the Jewish ceremonial law centered around him. Paul carried his point. Paul sent him to Corinth three times. Once he was sent when he began the collection there—II Cor. 8:6. A year later Paul sent Titus, possibly with a lost letter, but certainly with a vigorous message to the recalcitrant element in the church—II Cor. 2:12 f.; 7:6, 13; 12:17 f. Once more he, along with two other messengers (probably Luke and Erastus), goes to Corinth with a fresh message from Paul (probably II Corinthians) and with the burden of finishing the collection—II Cor. 8:16, 23. He is with Paul in Crete and is left as an evangelist in charge of the work—Titus 1:4. He is with Paul in Rome during his second imprisonment and is sent to Dalmatia—II Tim. 4:10.

Titus and Timothy.—They are naturally associated in our minds, because they received the Pastoral Epistles and were charged with similar work, that of the evangelist, the one in Crete, the other in Asia. They are both together with Paul in Macedonia—II Cor. 1:1; 7:13. They had both been to Corinth for Paul, but not at the same time. Timothy had apparently returned (I Cor. 4:17; II Cor. 1:1) before Titus went. Perhaps Timothy had not shown quite force enough to handle the difficult situation at Corinth—I Tim. 3:12. In Titus 2:15 "youth" is not used. Hence Titus was sent also. Timothy was less robust in health (I Tim. 5:23) than Titus. Both were Paul's children in the gospel and a joy to his old age. As he saw the end for his own work, he turned with hope to these young ministers (and others like them).

Work in Crete.—We do not know when it was established. Paul had not time to do gospel work in Crete when he touched there on his way to Rome.—Acts 27:7 ff. We do not know exactly when he was in Crete with Titus. It may have been about setting things in order in Crete before Titus comes to Nicopolis to see Paul—1:5; 3:12.

Rather Extended Salutation.—For so brief a letter the greeting (1:1-4) is long. Cf. two verses only in I Timothy and II Timothy. Discusses Paul, the elect, the gospel, God, Christ, Titus.

Titus and the Appointment of Elders.—This important matter had apparently been overlooked when Paul was there—1:5-9.

Task before Titus and the Elders in Crete.—A serious one, hence the need of care—1:10-16.

Social Problems.—As in I Timothy, so here Paul gives pungent directions for the various classes in home and society—Ch. 2.

Practical Christian Life.—The practical side of life is uppermost in Paul's mind in this Epistle—3:1-11.

Messengers of Paul.—Zenias the lawyer and Apollos are already in Crete, while Artemas or Tychicus will come—3:12 f.

on his return from Spain, assuming that he went there. It may have been on his way west.

Troubles in Crete.—The people themselves bore a bad reputation as liars and gluttons—Titus 1:12 f. The party of the circumcision (1:10), Pharisaic Christians (remnants of the Judaizers), are here as well as some of the newer heretics, the Gnostics—1:16. Altogether it was not a very hopeful outlook.

Genuineness.—The Pauline authorship of Titus stands or falls with the Epistles to Timothy. They are much of a piece in style and general character. Titus, though brief, is full of wisdom and gospel truth and can worthily be taken as Paul's own letter. Paul wrote all three.

Date.—It is not certain whether Titus is before or after I Timothy. Most probably it comes soon afterwards.

Paul in Macedonia.—He expects to winter in Nicopolis, a city of Epirus in Western Macedonia—Titus 3:12. He was in Macedonia also when he wrote I Timothy (1:3).

Purpose of the Epistle.—It is to give directions to Titus

*PHILEMON: Date.—This Epistle was sent at the same time with Colossians and Ephesians—Philemon 10, 13; Col. 4:7-9; Eph. 6:21 f. Onesimus and Tychicus bear the Epistle to the Colossians (4:7-9), while Onesimus bears the one to Philemon (10) and Tychicus is the bearer of the Epistle to the Ephesians (6:21). Paul is still a prisoner in Rome (Philemon 1), and this group of letters was written while there, possibly just after the one to the Philippians and shortly before his release. Cf. Acts 28:30 f. The Epistle probably belongs to the year A.D. 62 or 63.

Personal Character of the Epistle.—No great doctrinal matters are involved, nor is the letter addressed to a church. But it is a delightful picture of domestic life in Colosse, one of the great cities in the Lycus Valley in the Province of Asia.

A Family Group.—Apphia seems to be the wife of Philemon and Archippus is their son—Philemon 1 f. It was a family of influence in the city and their home was used as a meeting place for the church in Colosse—v. 2. The possessions of slaves did not necessarily indicate great wealth, unless the number was considerable. It is possible that this family came under Paul's influence while he was in Ephesus—Acts 19:10.

Onesimus.—He had a good name, but he had not lived up to it—v. 10 f. He was not only a runaway slave, but had apparently stolen something as he left—v. 19. Rome was a favorite resort for runaway slaves, and Onesimus went there. He came under Paul's influence and was led to Christ by him—v. 10.

Christian Slaves.—Slavery had its grip on the Roman empire. These slaves were not all degraded people by any means. Many of them were captives in war. Some of them were persons of real culture and distinction. But Roman law not only recognized slavery, but showed no sympathy with the slave. It was a delicate and dangerous situation. The conversion of the slaves to Christ often put master and slave in the same church. Nowhere does Paul show more consummate skill than in handling of such a subject in this Epistle.

Sociological Problems.—The modern problems in social life are old problems. They come into the horizon of this Epistle. The way that Christianity approaches such subjects is here finely illustrated.

Courtesy.—This is not essentially a Christian grace, but Christianity includes it. There is a fine flavor of courtesy in this Epistle. There is no railing at Philemon.

Delicacy.—So also Onesimus is not branded a mere runaway slave. Paul calls him his "child" (10); "a brother beloved" (16); "no longer a servant."

Compliment for Philemon.—It is not mere empty eulogy in 4-7, but sincere appreciation of his worth and work.

Return of Onesimus.—Paul acknowledges Philemon's legal claim on Onesimus, and so sends him back, but with a plea for his voluntary return—vs. 8-14.

Paul's Pledge for Onesimus.—He guarantees him Christian character, pleads for his reception in that relation, and offers to repay what he may have taken when he left—vs. 15-20. [cont.]

Suggestion of Freedom.—In verse 21 Paul expresses the hope that he will set Onesimus free.

Gradual Emancipation.—Evidently then Paul announces a spirit of love for Christian slaves as men and brethren which had in it the destruction of human slavery. This leaven of freedom has worked through the ages, and the Epistle to Philemon is a charter of freedom.

Group of Friends.—Timothy is with Paul in Rome—1.

for ^a love's sake I rather ^b c beseech, being such a one as ^d Paul ^e 1 the aged, and now ^f 9 a prisoner also of ^h Christ Jē'sūs: 10 I beseech thee for my ⁱ j k child, whom I have ^l begotten in my ^m bonds, ⁿ 2 Ō-nēs'ī-mūs, 11 who once was unprofitable to thee, but now is profitable to thee and to me: 12 whom I have sent back to thee in his own person, that is, my very ^o heart: 13 whom I would fain have kept with me, that in thy behalf he might ^p minister unto me in the ^q bonds of the ^r 3 gospel: 14 but without thy ^s mind I would do nothing; that thy ^t goodness should ^u not be as of necessity, but of free will. 15 For perhaps ^v he was therefore parted from thee for a ^w season, that thou shouldst have him for ever; 16 ^x no longer as a ^y 24 servant, but more than a ^z servant, a ^a b c brother ^d beloved, specially to me, but how much rather to thee, both ^e in the ^f flesh and in the ^g Lord. 17 If Epaphras, who is from Colosse (Col. 4:12), he calls his "fellow-prisoner" (Philemon 23), probably in a spiritual sense, though the point is not certain. John Mark is again with Paul (23), so that he has come back into Paul's favor. Luke, the faithful physician and friend, Aristarchus, and Demas are also Paul's "fellow-workers." * HEBREWS: Author.—Absolutely unknown. Origin said only God knew who wrote this wonderful Book, one of the greatest in the New Testament. Paul, Barnabas, Apollos, Luke, Clement, Timothy, Silas, Priscilla, and others have advocates. Modern scholarship is on the whole against the Pauline authorship. But Pauline: In the sense that Paul's two great doctrines of a spiritual religion and one universal in scope run through the entire book. The writer may or may not have been a disciple of Paul, but he had Paul's conception of freedom from ceremony and the glory of the redemptive work of Christ: Heb. 2:9. Either Jew or Greek: The author's familiarity with the Levitical ritual and tabernacle service may indicate a Jewish mind; but, if so, it was one in touch with Hellenism and Greek philosophy—Heb. 1:2 f. The writer was in touch with both worlds of thought. Not a Hellenizer: But the author did not make a mere blend of Judaism and Hellenism after the manner of Philo and the other Jewish Alexandrian philosophers. The terms "effulgence," "image," "substance" (1:3) do show knowledge of Greek philosophical terms, but they are charged with a Christian content. Not a Judaizer: The prolonged discussion of the Jewish Ceremonial System made it impossible for the author to betray his sympathy with the position of the Judaizers (Acts 15:1, 5) if he had held it. On the contrary he goes further than Paul (cf. Acts 21:22 ff.) and urges Jewish Christians to leave Mosaism—Heb. 13:13.

power, when he had made ^{w x y z} purification of ^a sins, ^{b c} sat down on the ^d right hand of the ^{e f} Majesty on high; 4 having become by so much better than the ^g angels, as he hath inherited a more excellent ^{h i} name than they. 5 For unto which of the angels said he at any time, ^{j k} Thou art my ^l Son, This day have I begotten thee? and again, ^m I will be to him a ⁿ Father, And he shall be to me a Son?

Readers.—Title may not be original; entire argument is meant for Jews. Probably Jewish Christians of Palestine, though not necessarily of one town like Jerusalem.
Place.—Author may be in Italy (Heb. 13:24), though the reference is ambiguous.
Date.—Probably just before destruction of the Temple in A.D. 70, since the mention of that fact would have greatly strengthened the argument about the vanishing of the Old Dispensation in 8:13. Timothy is released—Heb. 13:23. If he did go to Paul's relief (II Tim. 3:21) in A.D. 68 and was himself imprisoned, the date would be practically known as A.D. 69.
Temptation of Readers.—Apostasy (Heb. 3:12, 14; 4:1, 11, 14 &c.) was the peril of these Hebrew Christians. Their Jewish neighbors had derided Christianity as not a true religion. They charged that it was a religion without a glorious past or origin, with no great heroes, with no priestly service, no Temple—the religion of a mere man, and a man of very humble estate and ignoble death. They had no prophets, no angels, no Moses, no Aaron, no Holy of Holies.
Contrast with Peril of the Galatians.—The Galatians were urged by the Judaizers to add Judaism to Christianity in order to render it effective. The readers of the Epistle to the Hebrews are urged to give up Christianity entirely and return to Judaism, which was sufficient of itself.
Great Christian Apologetic.—Judaism and Christianity are thus pitted against each other at the point where Judaism seemed strongest—the ritual and ceremonial. The author accepts the challenge and gives the Christian interpretation of the Jewish ceremonial and its bearing on Christianity. Jesus in the Sermon on the Mount contrasted His teaching of righteousness with that of the rabbis. Here the whole system of type and ceremony is shown to be meaningless apart from Christ, who was the Reality to which all the Types pointed.

Distinct Type of Christian Thought.—Priesthood of Christ. So here we have one great field of Christian thought hardly worked out at all elsewhere in the New Testament. It is indeed the very heart of the work of Christ, His atoning death, that is here presented in its priestly aspects. Jesus as Priest is the burden of the book.

Argument by Contrast.—The author uses the method of contrast to prove his great contention. He measures Jesus against every point of glory in the Old Testament Dispensation.

Jesus the Heart of the Book.—He is the glory of Christianity. So the author does not shun the human name Jesus, but glories in it—2:9; 3:1. What the readers need is a true conception of Jesus.

Person of Christ.—Hence the book becomes the most extended discussion of Christology in the New Testament. Cf. Colossians, when Paul asserts the true idea of Christ's person as opposed to the Gnostic depreciation.

Son of God.—All through the book Jesus is presented as the Son of God—1:2, 5-14; 4:14, &c.

Son of Man.—The Humanity of Jesus is not only admitted, but is shown to be His greatest glory and element of power in His priestly work—2:5-18. The purpose of the Incarnation is thus seen.

Nature of Jesus.—The terms used show His real humanity and real deity, avoiding both Sabellianism and Arianism—1:3 f. He is now in Majesty by the Father's side.

Jesus superior to the Old Testament Prophets.—1:1-3. Because He is God's Son. Hence His message demands more respect.

Jesus superior to Angels.—1:4; 2:18. Because He is God's Son. Hence the new message calls for more earnest heed—2:1-4.

Jesus Superior to Moses and Joshua.—3:1-4:13. Because He is God's Son. Hence the greater peril of disobeying Him.

Jesus Superior to Aaron.—4:14; 7:28. Because He is a Priest of a higher type, like Melchizedek. As God's Son He is able to do perfect and eternal service—7:26-28.

Jesus works under a Better Covenant.—8:1-13. A Covenant of Grace which displaces the old—8:13.

Jesus Serves in a Better Sanctuary.—49:1-12. The one in Heaven, the True Sanctuary.

Jesus presents a Better Sacrifice.—9:13; 10:18. His own blood the only real sacrifice.

Jesus has Better Promises.—10:19; 12:3. In that they have come true in Him and are now clear to us—11:39 f.

The Lesson of Chastisement.—12:4. This their need.

The Example of Esau.—12:14-17. A warning to them.

Contrast between Mount Sinai and Mount Zion.—12:18-29. One a symbol of the Law, the other of Grace (Kingdom of God).

Loyalty to Leaders.—Their real leaders, their own leaders (13:7, 17), instead of listening to outsiders and being led astray.

Loyalty to Jesus.—This the great exhortation all through the Epistle. Hold fast to Christ, hold on to the Confession. Cf. 2:1-4; 3:1, 6, 12, 14, 19; 4:1, 11-13, 14, 16; 5:11 f.; 6:1-8, 11; 10:19-25, 28 f., 35, 39; 11:39 f., 12:1-3, 28 f.; 13:8, 10-14.

Separation from Judaism.—If necessary, let Jewish Christians renounce Judaism rather than Christianity. Follow Christ outside the Gate (cf. Jerusalem, Judaism) and bear the reproach—13:12 f. Not that Judaism was wrong for Jews. It was useless—8:13. If Jews forced the issue, let reparation come.

Purpose of the Author.—He aims to hold the wavering Hebrew Christians to Christianity. His powerful interpretation of Christianity in contrast to ceremonial Judaism has become the final word on that subject.

Tabernacle, not Temple.—Temple was still standing when the Epistle was written. But the tabernacle was the original from which the temple was fashioned. The tabernacle itself was patterned after the heavenly original. Hence the real contrast lay between these two.

Melchizedek.—The discussion about Melchizedek (ch. 7) is one of the most original parts of the book. The independence of Aaron removed Jesus entirely from the priestly line and mere ecclesiasticism.

Original Language.—Most surely Greek, not Aramaic. The book shows no marks of being a translation.

Style.—The book has been said to begin like a treatise,

The Real Judaism.—In a word, according to this book, Christianity is the real Judaism, the Spiritual Israel (cf. Paul in Gal. 3:8; Rom. 2:28 f.). Judaism had no efficacy apart from Christ—9:18.

Testament, or Will.—Double sense in the Greek word for Covenant or Will is turned to good account in—9:15-20.

Relation of the Epistle to John the Baptist.—Teaching the sacrificial aspect of Christ's work appears in the mouth of the Baptist—John 1:29.

Relation to Teaching of Jesus.—Jesus taught the sacrificial nature of His death—Mt. 20:28; 26:28; Mk. 10:45; John 10:15, 17 f.

*JAMES: Brother of Jesus.—He was the oldest of four brothers (Mt. 13:55; Mk. 6:3), sons of Joseph and probably of Mary also—Mt. 1:25. For further account of brothers and sisters of Jesus, see Mt. 12:16–50; Mk. 3:31–35; Lu. 8:19–21; John 7:3–5.

Hostile Attitude toward Jesus.—See Mt. 12:46; Mk. 3:31; Lu. 8:19; John 7:3 f.

Jesus appeared to him.—Cf. I Cor. 15:7. This event led to his conversion.

With the Disciples at Pentecost.—Cf. Acts 1:14. Visited by Paul on Return from Damascus.—Gal. 1:19.

Soon the Leader among the Elders of Jerusalem.—Acts 12:17. So acknowledged by Peter.

Acknowledged as Pillar by Paul.—Gal. 2:9. Along with Peter and John the Apostles.

Belongs to the Jewish Phase of the Work.—Gal. 2:8 f. Presides over the Jerusalem Conference. This is the natural meaning of "my judgment" in Acts 15:19. His address (Acts 15:19–21) met the approval of the conference—15:22. He probably wrote the Epistle to the Christians of Antioch, Syria and Cilicia, which embodied his address and sustained Paul's contention of freedom for the Gentiles from the Mosaic ritual—Acts 15:23–29.

Name used by Judaizers.—They implied that James disapproved Peter's social freedom with the Gentile Christians—Gal. 2:12.

Not a Judaizer.—His address in Jerusalem (Acts 15:19–21) showed his sympathy with Paul's position. The Judaizers later claimed Peter, also because of his temporary desertion of Paul at Antioch—Gal. 2:11 ff. Both James and Peter continued in sympathy with Paul's contention.

Friendship for Paul.—This was shown at a critical time, when the Judaizers had grossly misrepresented Paul's position to the Jerusalem Christians—Acts 21:18–25.

Married Man.—See I Cor. 9:5.

Death.—Josephus (Ant., XX, IX, 1) tells the story of his death at the hands of the High Priest Ananus.

Called the Just.—In honor of his loyalty to Judaism, though a Christian.

He was not a Judaizer, but a true Jew, in love with his people and their customs.

EPISTLE OF JAMES: Genuine.—Suits what we know of his theology and style from his address and the Letter in Acts 15.

Date.—Two views: one that it was written about A.D. 50 (probably correct), another that shortly before Destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70.

Readers.—Twelve tribes of the Dispersion (Jewish Christians), probably before there were many Gentile Christians—James 1:1.

Does not claim Kinship with Jesus.—Calls himself slave, or servant—Jas 1:1.

Esteems Jesus as Lord.—Jas. 1:1. He is the subject and object of faith—2:1.

Familiar with Teachings of Jesus.—Does not often mention the name of Christ, but is much like the Sermon on the Mount in subject-matter and imagery. Cf. 1:5–11, 25 f.; 2:6–26; 3:1–18.

Nearest Old Testament in Point of View.—This is natural if, as is possible, it is one of the very earliest books of the New Testament. Cf. in particular James 4:7–10.

Worship still in Synagogues.—James 2:2; 5:14.

Independent of (probably before) Paul's Contention about Gentiles and the Ceremonial Law.—In 2:18 James has the point of view of John the Baptist and of Jesus. He asks for proof of faith as they did. He is not contradicting Paul, nor did Paul contradict James. Each is speaking of a different matter. Paul treats Justification and Trust as initial acts in the Christian life. James considers the life as a proof of one's profession. Cf. Paul's doctrine of Sanctification in Rom. chaps. 6–8.

Practical Ethics.—The Epistle is the "Gospel of Common Sense" (Deems) and a vital discussion of social problems (rich and poor, employer and employee, cure of the sick, question of teachers, &c.).

Jewish Christian Problems.—The vices condemned belong to an early type of church life and are not Gentile problems. Cf. oppression in 5:1–6; partiality in 2:1–7.

Beautiful Images.—Varied and abundant pictures. Cf. 1:5–11; 3:1–12. Possibly used by other New Testament writers. Mayor considers that Epistles of John, of Hebrews, I Peter, Paul's Epistles to Galatians, Romans, and Timothy, all show traces of use of James Cf. Mayor, "The Epistle of James."

Christian Spirit of the Book.—Though Jewish in tone, the book is Christian in point of view, spirit and ideal. The outer life is demanded as an expression of the inner.

† JAMES II.—The son of Alphaeus (probably Clopas of John 19:25)—Lu. 6:16. His mother was Mary, one of the women who stood around the cross of Jesus. He is called "the Less," or "the Little"—Mk. 15:40. Brother of Josès—Mk. 15:40; 16:1; John 19:25.

JAMES III.—Father of Judas the Apostle (not Iscariot)—Lu. 6:16. See "Apostles," Mt. 10:5.

1 PETER: Author.—The writer calls himself "Peter, an Apostle of Jesus Christ" (1:1); the early writers (Papias, Polycarp, Irenæus, Clement of Alex., Origen, &c.) attribute the Epistle to Peter. It is acknowledged as genuine by the great majority of modern scholars. The internal character corresponds admirably with this claim. It is just the kind of a book that Peter would probably write, judging from the accounts of Peter in the Gospels and the Acts. For sketch of his life, see "Peter"—Mt. 4:18.

Companions in the Salutation.—Mark is no longer with Barnabas (Acts 15:39), but is now with Peter—I Pet. 5:13. Peter travelled with his wife (I Cor. 9:5) and "she that is in Babylon elect" (I Pet. 5:13) may be his wife, or the reference may be to the Church as is more probable.

Amanuensis and Bearer.—It is probable that Silvanus (5:12) acted as both for Peter. If he was amanuensis, that fact may explain to some extent the style.

Place.—It is probable, though not certain, that Babylon in I Pet. 5:13 is used for Rome. The objection to that interpretation is that this is an Epistle, not an apocalypse. But the veiled image is probably used for precaution due to fear of the emperor. Still the provinces (1:1) are named from the standpoint of Babylon.

Date.—The time of Peter's death is not known. This was either about A.D. 64 or 68. The persecution as a Christian referred to in I Pet. 4:16 may be official or domestic. If official, it would be just after the Neronian persecution began (A.D. 64), which may very well have spread to the provinces of Asia where the emperor-worship had its chief home. The date would then be about 65. But the persecutions may have been mainly the scorn of neighbors and friends. If so, the date could be before 64.

Readers.—"The sojourners of the Dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia and Bithynia" (I Pet. 1:1) were probably both Jews and Gentiles, the spiritual Israel. The Roman provinces of Pamphylia and Cilicia are not mentioned. Paul had preached in these two and in Asia and Galatia. Who evangelized Pontus, Cappadocia and Bithynia we do not know. Peter himself may have done so, but he writes to two provinces where Paul had certainly wrought.

Relation to Speeches in Acts.—There is undoubted similarity in doctrine, spirit, and languages between Peter's addresses in Acts and this Epistle. Cf. Acts 3:19–21 with I Pet. 3:20, for instance. See also Acts 1:22 and I Pet. 5:1; Acts 4:11 and I Pet. 2:4; Acts 10:34 and I Pet. 1:17. It is not probable that Luke had seen Peter's epistles or that Peter had seen Acts.

Knowledge of the Old Testament.—There are numerous marks of the Sept. in I Peter. His quotations are chiefly from Isaiah, Proverbs and the Psalms. Cf. I Pet. 1:18–20 and Is. 53; I Pet. 1:24 f. and Is. 40:6; I Pet. 2:17 and Prov. 24:21; I Pet. 4:8 and Prov. 10:12; I Pet. 3:10 f. and Ps. 34:12 f.

Knowledge of the Life of Christ.—The Epistle shows no acquaintance with the Gospels, but does reflect real familiarity with the life and teachings of Jesus. In particular he uses some phrases and figures like those of Jesus in the Sermon on the Mount. Cf. I Pet. 2:12; 3:13–16; 3:14; 4:14; 5:6 and Mt. 5:10, 11, 16; 6:25 &c. The reference to the suffering and glory of Christ in I Pet. 5:1 may be an echo of the Transfiguration. So in 1:8 the repetition of the fact that the readers had not seen Jesus accents the fact that Peter had seen Him in the flesh.

Relation to James.—There seems to be some connection between I Peter and the Epistle of James. James probably wrote first, and so Peter may have read his Epistle. Cp. Jas. 1:1 and I Pet. 1:1; Jas. 1:2 f. and I Pet. 1:6 f.; Jas. 1:11–22 and I Pet. 1:23–2:1.

Relation to Paul.—There are some vague general expressions in Ephesians and I Peter that correspond, which are easily explained; but the Epistle shows very remarkable kinship to the Epistle to the Romans. If Peter was in Rome when he wrote, he may very well have seen this great Pauline Epistle. Cf. I Pet. 1:14 and Rom. 12:2; I Pet. 1:21 and Rom. 4:24; I Pet. 2:5 and Rom. 12:1; I Pet. 2:6 f. and Rom. 9:33; I Pet. 3:8–12 and Rom. 12:14–19; I Pet. 3:22 and Rom. 8:34; I Pet. 4:1 and Rom. 6:7; I Pet. 5:1 and Rom. 8:18 &c.

Purpose.—The aim is distinctly practical, not doctrinal. Cf. also Peter's addresses in Acts where the hortatory element predominates. He sounds here a note of cheer and courage to meet the present trials. He makes appeal to the example of Christ and their own experience and expounds the Old Testament teaching. He urges trust and holy living as present duties.

Contents.—The introduction (1:1 f.) sets forth the doctrine of the Trinity and accents the atoning death of Jesus. The purposes of God are shown in the new birth of the believer and the eternal inheritance which is his—1:3-5. This blessed hope is ample cheer in present fiery trails for those who love the unseen Jesus—1:6-9. The prophets never saw what Christians now know by blessed experience in Christ—1:10-12. Sobriety and hope are the demands of the times—1:13-25. Steady growth will fulfil Christ's ideal for his people—2:1-10. He doubtless (2:5) has in mind Christ's promise—Mt. 16:18. All classes must exemplify the spirit of Christ and be a real brotherhood—2:11-3:12. No one can harm the Christian who has Christ supreme in his heart—3:13-22. They must, like Christ, set a good example for the Gentiles—4:1-11. If they have to suffer, let it be as innocent men—4:12-19. Peter can well exhort them to humility and steadfastness (5:1-11) in view of his own bitter experience.

Style.—The Epistle has a large number of words not found elsewhere in the New Testament, sixty-two in all. But the style, while dignified and elevated, is not florid. It is a bit oratorical, but not unduly so. It is possible that Silvanus, as Peter's amanuensis, was of some service in the use of the smooth vernacular Greek in which it is written.

II PETER: Author.—This is the most disputed book in the New Testament. Its genuineness is on the whole the most doubtful. Conservative scholars like Chase and Lechler consider it pseudonymous, while a radical critic like Spitta holds it genuine, as do conservative scholars like Bigg and Zahn. Probably its genuineness can never be fully and clearly determined to the satisfaction of all, for the arguments on both sides are strong. But on the whole the Epistle holds its own rightful place in the canon as the work of Simon Peter.

Author's Claims.—The very frequency of these claims has been turned against the authenticity of the book. He calls himself Simon (Symeon in the Greek, the Aramaic form) Peter (1:1) rather than just Peter as in I Pet. 1:1. So in II Pet. 3:1. The writer definitely claims to have written another epistle. It is urged that "your apostles" (3:2) could not have been used by Peter, but that is not certain. The outspokenness of Peter is sufficient to explain all this.

Use of the Gospels.—No evidence is found of any use of the Gospel in II Peter, through the point of view in general is that of Mark, who was Peter's interpreter.

Knowledge of the Life of Jesus.—Even more than in I Peter do we find reference to the work of Christ. It is done in the most natural way. Thus in 1:3 ("that called us") we may have allusion to the fact that Jesus called the apostles in person. In 1:14 the early death of Peter is mentioned as foretold by Jesus—John 21:18 f. The clear reference to the Transfiguration (1:16 f.) is natural if Peter is the writer. His language here sounds like that of one who was present. Cf. also II Pet. 2:20; 3:4.

Synoptic Eschatology.—The view of the Second Coming and of the end of the world is practically the same as this in the great eschatological discourse of Jesus on the Mount of Olives. There is the same confidence that Jesus will come, though the time is unknown. The doubt of some (ch. 3) shows that at least a generation had passed since the Ascension of Christ.

Relation to Peter's Speeches.—As with I Peter, so here manifest similarities are found with Peter's speeches in Acts. See Lumbly.

Relation to I Peter.—The writer expressly refers to I Peter—3:1. And yet it is evident that the style of the two books differs very greatly. So much is this true that the language of II Peter has been called "Baboo Greek." Some have fancied a use of Josephus in II Peter, but it is not made out. The truth probably is that in I Peter Silvanus acted as Peter's amanuensis (I Pet. 5:12), while in II Peter there was another less accomplished amanuensis or, as is most probable, Peter had no amanuensis at all. He was called "unlearned and ignorant"—Acts 4:13. And here there is a certain uncouthness of style that may thus find its explanation. There is more reserve in I Peter, while the language of II Peter is full of unusual words. Some of them are due to the vernacular "Koine" in which the New Testament is written (see the Papyri), but others are personal peculiarities. There are 231 words here not found in I Peter, but, on the other hand, the rest of the vocabulary is quite similar to that of I Peter. Cf. Bigg. Both Epistles are fond of repeating words and both use the plural of abstract nouns. Both (Marcus Dods in Standard B. D.) have the same mannerism of stating a thing both negatively and positively. The undercurrent of thought in both is the same. The variations of thought are here also. "In II Peter false teaching instead of persecution is a source of danger; knowledge takes the place of hope, and piety that of holiness." (Falconis in Hastings' one vol. B. D.) Noah and the flood are mentioned in both.

Use of Jude.—It seems clear that either, as is probable, II Peter makes use of Jude (cf. ch. 2 with Jude) or that Jude is based on II Peter. Scholars are much divided. Jude is the more vivid and apparently the more original. This use of Jude does not discredit the book. Cf. the use of the O. T. words and phrases in the N. T.

Use of the O. T.—Express quotations are few, but the O. T. examples are used as in the case of Noah and Lot—Ch. 2. But cf. 3:7 and Is. 13:9-13; 3:8 and Ps. 90:4; 2:17 and Prov. 10:11. Cf. also the writer's theory of prophetic inspiration in the Old Testament—1:20 f.

Relation to Book of Enoch.—Some writers find a parallel between Enoch and Peter's mention of the fallen angels in 2:4, 11.

Mention of Paul's Epistles as Scripture.—Peter's praise of Paul in II Peter 3:15 is urged by some as proof that the book is not genuine, since Paul had rebuked Peter so sharply in Gal. 2:11 ff. But it was just like Peter to rebound in his affection as he had done toward Christ. It is argued also that the description of Paul's Epistles as Scripture in II Pet. 3:16 shows the book to be quite late, even in the second century. But Clement of Rome, before the end of the first century, shows that Paul's Epistles were already collected together. It is not to be forgotten also that Paul claimed authority for his Epistles—II Thess. 3:6, 14. It does not follow that Peter had read all of Paul's Epistles. But one need only to turn to II Cor., Chs. 10–13, to see how Paul himself felt concerning his apostleship—Gal., Chs. 1 and 2. It is by no means evident that the early Christians who were loyal to Paul did not consider Paul's Epistles as the Word of God, even on a par with the Old Testament.

External Evidence.—It is only fair to say, however, that there is no certain mention of this Epistle in early Christian writers till the close of the second century. Clement of Alexandria knew and used it about 190 A.D. The early writers were divided on the genuineness of the book. Eusebius rejected it. It is at any rate a proof of some criticism on the part of the early Christians.

Date.—There is nothing decisive in this matter except that if it was written by Peter, it was before 68 A.D. If the book is not genuine, it may, of course, belong to the second century.

Place.—There is no hint as to the whereabouts of the writer at this time.

Readers.—He implies that they are the same as the readers of the First Epistle—II Pet. 3:1. They were probably chiefly Gentile Christians.

Aim.—The purpose is not precisely the same as I Peter. He has in mind not so much persecution as heresy. It is not clear where this incipient Gnosticism lies in the background, but certainly the readers are warned against a violent form of looseness in living. Perhaps some of the Gentile Christians in the east had turned Paul's principle of freedom to license—Gal. 5:1, 13. They were making the doctrines of grace a cover for the grossest immoralities (cf. Rom. 6:1 f.), like the Nicolaitans in Rev. 2:10–24. The keyword of this Epistle is Knowledge. The readers must grow in the knowledge of Jesus so as to stem the tide of heresy around them. The writer is anxious to conserve for them his own knowledge of Christ (1:14 f.), a possible reference to the Gospel of Mark. Like I Peter the book is mainly exhortation.

Contents.—The introduction is very brief (1:1 f.), but sounds the key-note of the book in its accent on faith, righteousness and knowledge. Growth in the Christian virtues is urged in 1:3–11. He is now doing his part to help them on in this development in grace—1:12–21. They are warned against the current false teachers who are repetitions of those in the older days—Ch. 2. The Second Coming of Christ is sure, though delayed. God does not count time as men do—3:1–13. The practical duty of all is to be ready without spot and blameless when Jesus comes—3:14–18.

Leading Ideas.—Deity of Jesus—1:1. "Our God and Saviour Jesus Christ." So margin, and correctly. Partakers of the divine nature—1:4. Diligence in acquiring Christian virtues—1:5–8. 1: 1 INTRODUCTION. "WALK IN THE LIGHT . . . EVEN AS HE WALKED" 1: 10

¹ That which was ^a from the ^b beginning, that which ^c we have ^d heard, that which we have ^e seen with our ^f eyes, that which we ^g beheld, and our ^h hands ⁱ handled, concerning the ^k Word of ^l life 2 (and ^m the life was ⁿ manifested, and we have seen, and ^o bear witness, and declare unto you the life, ^p the eternal life, which was ^q with the ^r Father, and was manifested unto us); 3 that which we have seen and heard declare we unto ^s you also, that ye also may have ^t fellowship with us: yea, and our ^u fellowship is with the Father, and with his ^v Son Jē'sūs Christ: 4 and ^w these things we ^x write, that ² our ^y joy may be made full.

* FIRST EPISTLE OF JOHN.—Author, John. No reference to the writer occurs, except that in the introduction. He claims to be a personal witness to the earthly life of Jesus—I John 1:1-4.

Style.—Almost identical with that of the Fourth Gospel, and obviously by the same author. We have here the same repetition, the same positive and negative statements, the same favorite ideas and words.

Literary Form.—The book is less personal than II John and III John. It is like Hebrews, and rather more of a treatise than a personal Epistle. Yet the homiletical flavor is present in the frequent appeals and exhortations.

Date.—No means of determining for certain. No persecution appears in sight. John is an old man. Heresy is rife.

Place.—Probably from Ephesus.

Destination.—Probably to the same region as the Apocalypse, the churches of Asia (Roman province).

5 And ^a this is the message which we have heard from him and announce unto you, that ^b God is ^d light, and in him is no ^c darkness at all. 6 ^f If we say that we have fellowship with him and ^g walk in the darkness, we ⁱ lie, and ^k do not the ^l truth: 7 but if we ^m walk in the light, as ⁿ he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and ^o ^p the blood of Jē'sūs his Son cleanseth us from all sin. 8 ^r If we say that we have no ^s sin, we ^t deceive ourselves, and the ^u truth is not in us. 9 ^v If we ^x confess our sins, he is ^y faithful and righteous to ^z forgive us our sins, and to ^a cleanse us from all unrighteousness. 10 ^b If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and ^c his ^d word is not in us.

Occasion.—Laxity in views of the Person of Christ and in practical morality. Spread of Gnostic views. Corrective of Gnostic views of Jesus—the Ebionites made Jesus a mere man. The Docetic Gnostics denied His real humanity. The Cerinthian Gnostics combined both theories and made Jesus a mere man, but held that Christ was an Æon that came on Jesus at His baptism and left Him on the Cross.

Asserts the Truth about Christ.—Jesus Christ came in the flesh (I John 4:2) as against the Docetic Gnostics. Jesus is the same as Christ (I John 2:22) as opposed to Cerinthian Gnostics.

Purpose.—Polemical and for edification of native Christians.

Catholic Epistle.—General in destination and scope; not addressed to single church or person. There are no personal details.

Positive Assertions rather than Argument.—It is like the q Darkness, Job 38:9.

2 ^{a b} My little ^c children, ^d these things ^e write I unto you that ye may not ^f sin. And if any ^g man sin, ^h we have an ^{i j} Advocate with the ^k Father, ^l Je'sus Christ the righteous: 2 and he is ^m the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but also ⁿ for the whole ^{o p} world. 3 And ^q hereby we ^r know that we ^s know him, if we ^t keep his commandments. 4 He that saith, ^u 'I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a ^{v w} liar, and ^x the truth is not in him; 5 but whoso ^y keepeth his ^z word, in him verily hath the ^{a b} love of God been ^d perfected. Hereby we know that we are in him: 6 he that saith he ^e abideth in him ^{g h} ought himself also to ⁱ walk even as he walked.

7 ⁱ Beloved, ^k no new commandment write I unto you, but an old commandment which ye had ^l from the ^m beginning: the old commandment is the word which ye heard. 8 Again, ^{n a} a new commandment write I unto you, which thing is true in him and in you; because ^{p q} the 12 I write unto you, ^{my} ^o little children, because ^h your sins are ⁱ forgiven you for ^j his ^k name's sake. 13 I write unto you, ^l fathers, because ye know him ^m who is from the beginning. Gospel in setting forth in parallel form various aspects of a subject. Antithesis, repetition, parallelism, mark the Epistle.

Favorite Words.—The Word of Life (I John 1:1) is like John 1:1. Life (eternal life) is a common word, as in I John 1:2. Note: the Father (1:2 f.). So: message (1:5), light (1:5), fellowship (1:6), darkness (1:5 f.), lie and truth (1:6), little children (2:1), advocate (2:1), sin (2:1 f.), keep (2:3), know (2:5), hate (2:9), love (2:10), world (2:15), antichrist (2:18), righteous (3:7), prove (4:1), begotten (4:7), victory (5:4). These give a fair idea of the vocabulary of the Epistle. The ideas run in the same channel that we have in the Fourth Gospel, especially in the prologue.

*II JOHN: Same Obscurity.—Author same as in the case of First John. Date not necessarily the same, but probably the same general period. Place in similar obscurity. The Elder—II John 1. This term does not mean that the author is not an Apostle. Cf. I Pet. 5:1.

The Elect Lady.—II John 1. It is not certain whether the Epistle is addressed to an individual or a church. Kyria was used as a personal name. Probably on the whole we have a personal letter.

Not Catholic.—At any rate it is not a General Epistle like First John. It is addressed to a single person or church. Christian hospitality not for extreme heretics—II John 10. Docetic Gnosticism condemned—II John 7. Teaching of Christ rule and standard of orthodoxy—II John 9.

Favorite Words.—Love, truth, commandment, abide, teaching, confess.

Paper and Ink mentioned.—II John 12. Probably papyrus (paper).

* III JOHN: Date.—Probably the same general period. Personal, not Catholic.—Letter addressed to Gaius by the Elder. Picture of missionary activity—III John 5 f. Inability to receive pay from the Gentiles—III John 7. "The Name" used of Christ as in Acts—III John 7. Diotrephes—III John 9-11. Bold sketch of ambitious man who refused to entertain John. Demetrius, the very opposite of Diotrephes—III John 12. Hospitality urged—III John 5 f.

Favorite Words.—Love, truth, walk, know, witness, receive. Picture of John.—These Epistles reveal John's own character—his real character. Man of love and of anger, of reserve and of passions, of mysticism and of practical wisdom, of tenderness and of vehement denunciation of wrong, of spiritual insight and great plainness of speech. The Epistles show many of the same traits manifest in the Apocalypse.

*JUDE: Common Name.—From Judah, and so popular. Since the time of Judas Maccabeus this name was a favorite one with the loyal Jews. In the New Testament we have mentioned with this name an ancestor of Jesus (Lu. 3:30); Judas Iscariot (Mt. 10:4); Judas, not Iscariot, and probably same as Judas, the son of James, according to American Revision (Lu. 6:16; Acts 1:13); Judas of Damascus (Acts 9:11); Judas of Galilee (Acts 5:37); Judas Barsabas (Acts 15:22, 27, 32, 33); Jude the brother of James—Jude 1.

The Lord's Brother.—Jesus had brothers (sons of Joseph and Mary and probably younger than Jesus), according to Mt. 13:55; Mk. 6:3; whose names were "James and Joseph and Simon and Judas." The brothers were hostile to Jesus (Mt. 12:46 ff.; Mk. 3:21; John 7:3 ff.) at first. But they were present as believers at the meeting preceding the great day of Pentecost (Acts 1:14). The appearance of Jesus after His resurrection (I Cor. 15:7) probably led to the conversion of all the brothers and sisters

Does not claim Kinship with Jesus.—Like James, his brother (Jude 1) and brother of the Lord Jesus (Gal. 1:19), he calls himself only "a servant of Jesus Christ"—Jude 1. A man claiming to be Jude, though not, would most probably have claimed to be a brother of Jesus. Eusebius (H. E. iii. 19, 20, 23) notes Hegesippus as saying that Domitian found the grandchildren of Jude, the Lord's brother according to the flesh, as men of humble station, but sturdy and honorable.

Under the Shadow of James.—Jude appears not to have been so prominent nor active as his brother James, the leading elder in Jerusalem. Hence he calls himself the brother of James (Jude 1).

Not an Apostle.—Jude was not one of the Twelve Apostles, nor was he an Apostle in the sense that Paul was. His brother James is by implication called Apostle in some sense by Paul in Gal. 1:19. But Jude is not apparently an Apostle in that sense. He is "the servant of Jesus Christ."
Genuineness of the Epistle.—The Epistle by his name was not widely circulated, it appears at first. But modern scholars generally accept it as genuine. Cf. Biggs, Int. and Crit. Comm.
Date.—Most probably between A.D. 64 and 70.
Relation to II Peter.—Scholars are not a unit on this matter. Apparently Jude was acquainted with the second chapter of II Peter, or Peter was familiar with Jude. Not to argue the matter, one may assume that Jude is the earlier, on grounds of brevity and originality of style.

Use of Non-scriptural Books.—As Paul (Acts 17:28; Titus 1:12) quoted heathen writers, so Jude seems to quote the apocryphal book of Enoch—Jude 14. The word "prophesied" may be compared with Paul's use of "prophet" in Titus 1:12.
Language.—This short Epistle has a rather remarkable vocabulary. The writer is evidently familiar with the Septuagint, and uses the current language of the time, the Koine. He has the common tradition of Christian teaching. There is little that is distinctive in the general style outside of the full and rather sonorous vocabulary.
Many Images.—The bold images in the Epistle may be compared with the figures in the Epistle of James (cf. also the Sermon on the Mount).
Readers of the Epistle.—The destination of the letter is not made clear, save that it is to the elect—Jude 1. Probably the same general readers are had in mind, as we find in I Peter Theme.—The "common salvation" (Jude 3) is the general subject.

Type of Heresy condemned.—Probably Gnosticism of the earlier form. Cf. Colossians, Ephesians, Timothy, Titus, II Timothy, Epistles of John. It is not necessarily the Gnosticism of the second century.

(1:1) and II Peter (3:1). Some think that he has Corinth in mind.

Purpose.—The aim of the Epistle is to warn the elect against heresy and to exhort to earnest contention for the faith—Jude 3. The author shows much passion and zeal.

REVELATION: Title.—Revelation is in Greek "Apocalypse," an unveiling—Rev. 1:1. It is the revealing of Jesus Christ.

Agents.—God gave the revelation to Jesus, who sent it to John, the writer, by an angel for the benefit of the servants of God—Rev. 1:1.

Author.—His name is John (1:1, 9), who is in exile in the isle of Patmos, because of persecution—1:9. Irenæus identifies him with the Apostle John, and this view on the whole has the balance of evidence. Jesus had promised him the cup and baptism of woe—Mk. 10:38 ff.; Mt. 20:22 ff.

Date.—Two views exist about the date; one, and until recently the most popular among modern scholars, puts it just after Nero's death (A.D. 69), the other and the older view, and now again popular with scholars, locates it in the end of Domitian's reign (about A.D. 95) according to the testimony of Irenæus. The latter view is on the whole the more probable.

Destination.—The immediate servants of God who are readers (1:2, 3) are the members of the seven churches of Asia
(1:11): Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, Laodicea.

Why these Churches?—Many other churches in the Province of Asia and in large cities. Cf. Colossæ and Hierapolis.
But these seven make a circuit along important roads, and each the center of a district.

Real Letters.—Each of the seven churches has a special message (Chaps. 2 and 3) adapted to the real situation and environment. Cf. Ramsay, "The Letters to the Seven Churches," for the historical and archaeological details.

Varied Types.—The seven churches with the letters to them present a fairly complete picture of church life in all the ages. Hence the perils and problems of modern city churches are here well outlined.

Whole Book to Each Church.—But each church was to get the benefit of the messages to the other churches, and the entire Apocalypse was designed also for each church.

Unity of the Book.—Many efforts have been made to dis-prove the unity of the Apocalypse. Hort, "The Apocalypse of St. John," p. 13, sums up thus: "They have done nothing whatever to shake the traditional unity of authorship."

Apocalyptic Method.—This had come to be a favorite style of writing among the Jews and even among the Greeks and Romans (cf. Sybilline Oracles). Under the guise of symbols, past, present or future events were set forth in an oracular and vivid manner. To the initiated the method was very lucid, while to outsiders it was often mere cryptogram. One reason for its use was the safety thus secured for criticism of the ruling powers. Thus Peter (I Pet. 4:16) alludes to the Roman persecution of the Christians and seems to refer to Rome under the name Babylon—I Pet. 5:13.

Use of the Old Testament.—There are no express quotations from the Old Testament, but the Book is a mosaic of Old Testament phrases, especially from the Apocalyptic portions, as certain passages of Isaiah, Zephaniah, Zechariah, Ezekiel and Daniel. Daniel is the typical Old Testament Apocalyptic book. As examples of this use of the Old Testament compare Rev. 1:13 ff. with Ez. 1:7; 43:2; Dan. 10:5; Rev. 4:1 with Ez. 1:26 ff.; Rev. 4:6 ff. with Ez. 1:10; Is. 6:2; Rev. Ch. 5 with Current Apocalypses.—The general plan of an Apocalypse may be well illustrated by such books as Enoch, Esdras, Baruch, Assumption of Moses, Sybilline Oracles, Shepherd of Hermas, Apocalypse of Peter. The Christians naturally employed the method so common to the writers of the time.

Apocalyptic Method used by Jesus.—When this form of teaching was so common it is not surprising that Jesus made use of it. This He did on various occasions, especially in connection with the subject of the Kingdom, as in—Mt. 16:27 f.; Mk. 9:1; Lu. 9:26 f.; 17:20-37. In particular, in the discourse on the Mount of Olives, during the last week, we find extensive use of Apocalyptic—Cf. Mt. 24 and 125; Mk. Ch. 13; Lu. Ch. 21.

Paul's Use of Apocalyptic.—Cf. II Thess. 2:1-12 (the man of sin).

Apocalyptic in I John.—See "Discussion of Antichrist" in I John 2:18-29. Cf. also Jude 12 ff., and II Pet. 3:5-13. The Apocalypse of John is the greatest of all the apocalyptic books.

Language.—The Book has 871 distinct words besides names of persons and places, and 108 occur nowhere else in the New Testament. The peculiar subjects treated largely explain this number of individual words. The bulk of them occur in the common language of the time, as the papyrus show. Cf. Swete, "The Apocalypse of St. John," p. 117. The grammar of the book is remarkable for the large number of variations from usual Greek usage in the matter of agreement in gender, number and case. These occur, as a rule, in opposition where the demand was not so insistent for such agreement. Some of them are due to design; others may be due to lack of revision or to excitement from the visions.

Parenthesis is frequent and Anacoluthon.—These things occur in other Greek books, but more often in the Apocalypse. Cf. the statement in Acts 4:13 about John as an unlettered man.

Comparison with Gospel of John.—The style of the Apocalypse is both like and unlike the Gospel of John. Both the Gospel (John 21:24) and the Epistles may have had revision and supervision not true of the Apocalypse. Some of the favorite ideas of the Gospel are present, as power, witness, conquer, lead, know, keep, commandment, word, &c., while other common ideas of the Gospel do not appear. The two books are so different that it is difficult to make a just comparison. In the Gospel we see the contemplative, reflective side of the spiritual theologian. In the Apocalypse we have the Son of Thunder all ablaze with passion and power, though chastened by the love of Christ.

Leading Ideas of the Apocalypse.—Some of the great teachings of the book are the glory and majesty of God, the deity of Jesus, the grandeur of the redemptive work of Jesus, the persecutions of the saints, the conflict with the Roman Empire, the fate of the wicked, the happiness of the redeemed.

Historical Background.—The pictures in the book are drawn from the persecutions of Christians in the Roman Empire, probably in time of Domitian. Ramsay ("Letters to the Seven Churches") and Swete ("Apocalypse of St. John") both find in the imperial and provincial persecution the occasion for the intensity of the imagery. The emperor worship was the chief cult of the empire and was the form of idolatry that persecuted.

The Two Beasts.—According to this view the two beasts of Rev. Ch. 13, set forth the two aspects of the worship of the emperor (imperial and provincial).

Methods of Interpretation.—In a general way these may be described as historical, spiritual, or a combination of the two. The purely spiritual. Many find no history in the symbols at all. The purely historical interpretation divides into preterite (all in the past), future (all in the future), continuous and synchronous (from the first century to the end). The continuous theory makes the series of seven successive, while the synchronous theory finds them more or less parallel. The combination of the historical and the spiritual considers the book as a portrayal of immediate conflict between Christianity and pagan Rome with the certainty of ultimate triumph, but without any attempt to set forth the course of Christian History. The struggle then on hand would, despite great carnage, result in victory for Christ, and heaven was sure and might be soon won.

Panorama.—The book is in reality, barring Chaps. 2 and 3 (Letters to the Seven Churches), a series of pictures. Each is complete in itself, and yet each prepares for the others. They are not necessarily successive nor necessarily parallel. But various aspects of the Titanic struggle between the Kingdom of Christ and the Kingdom of Satan are portrayed in turn. They one and all teach the same lesson of triumph.

Symbols inexplicable.—It is not possible to be sure about the meaning of all the various images used like the seals, the locusts, the bowls, the horses, the scorpions, &c. The grandeur of the imagery is impressive, and the main lessons of the Book remain reasonably clear.

Spiritual and practical.—The book is written for the cheer of the saints in the Churches of Asia. John is himself a "partaker with you in the tribulation and kingdom and patience which are in Jesus"—Rev. 1:9. He is finally overcome by the vision of victory and glory which he sees—Rev. 22:8 f. They only need courage and patience.

Final Triumph of Jesus.—Jesus will win in the end. This is the supreme teaching of the Apocalypse—Rev. 11:15.

Picture of Jesus.—The whole book is in a sense the revelation of Jesus—Rev. 1:1. He is in heaven, the Redeemer, the Lamb that was slain, Lion of the Tribe of Judah, and He receives worship as the Father—Rev. Ch. 5. From heaven Jesus as the Captain of the Hosts directs the struggle on earth with Satan. Note the picture of Christ in Rev. 1:13–20.

Second Coming of Christ.—The fact of the return of Christ is prominent throughout the book. This is the main note of Christ. The time of the Second Coming of Christ is said to be "shortly" (Rev. 1:1) and to be "at hand" (1:3) and "I come quickly"—22:7, 20. John responds with a devout "amen" (22:20) to that promise. But one must recall the explanation of Peter, that God does not count time as we do. One thousand years and one day may be interchangeable as God looks at time—II Pet. 2:8 ff. The time is not made clear, but the fact is.

Millennium no Stumbling-block.—No theory of the millennium (Rev. Ch. 20) should be allowed to obscure the main matter, the certainty of Christ's return. The term "millennium," or "thousand years," belongs to the symbolism of the book.

Doctrinal Misuse of the Book.—Robert South said that the Apocalypse either found one mad or left him so. That is the extreme reaction against the cock-sure "keys" (all different), which men have had for the interpretation of this wonderful Apocalypse. Chiasm is the term applied to the literal interpretation of the images in the book, a grossly materialistic conception.

Antithesis.—The book is a book of contrasts, light and shadow, day and night, sorrow and joy; glimpses of hell and pictures of heaven alternate with each other. This method of contrast is similar to the style of the Gospel of John and the Epistles of John.

Picture of Hell.—The glimpses of the damned, the demons, and the final rot of the devil himself, present a fearfully vivid portrayal of the condition of the lost.

Picture of Heaven.—On the other hand the pictures of heaven are a comfort to the persecuted Christians.

Symbols.—Leading symbols in the book are Seven Spirits (1:4), for the Holy Spirit; Alpha and Omega (1:8); for God and for Jesus (22:13); Seven Candlesticks (1:20); for Churches: Seven Stars (1:20); for the Angels of the Churches: the Throne, the Rainbow, Sea of Glass, Four and Twenty Elders, the four living Creatures—Chap. 4. The Sealed Book, the Lamb that is the Lion—Chap. 5. The Seven Seals and the Four Horses—Chaps. 6–7. The Seven Trumpets—Chaps. 8–10, with various other Images. (The peculiar Locusts of 9:3 ff. The Horses of 9:17 ff. The Bitter-Sweet Book of 10:9 ff.) The 1260 Days and the two Witnesses of Chap. 11. The Woman and the Man-child of 12:1–6. The various images of the Devil in 12:7 ff. The two Beasts of 13. The 144,000 of Chap. 14. The Seven Bowls of Chap. 16. The great Harlot Babylon in 17:1 and 18. The Marriage of the Lamb in 19:1–10. The Supper of God in 19:17 ff. The Thousand Years in 20. The Book of Death and the Book of Life in Chap. 20. The New Heaven and the New Earth of Chap. 21 and 22.

Purpose of the Book.—Not primarily to teach doctrine, but to promote faith and courage. The book is full of doctrine, but that is incidental. It is a bugle-call to confidence and hope. "In form it is an epistle, containing an Apocalyptic prophecy; in spirit and inner purpose, it is a pastoral"—Swete, "Apocalypse," p. 90.

Downfall of Pagan Rome.—The exultant note of the Apocalypse (ch. 17 and 18) is the overthrow of Rome, mystically called Babylon. Rome had laid her heavy hand of oppression on the Christians. The end would be her own undoing. That came true in the sack of the city by the Goths and Vandals as well as in the downfall of the pagan power before Christianity.

Spirit of Worship.—The numerous images of worship and glory in heaven inculcate the spirit of reverential worship.

Permanent Value of the Book.—Revelation, like all the books of the New Testament, met an immediate need on the part of those to whom it was addressed. But it is far more than a pamphlet for the times. The book is drawn on such grand lines that it furnished Christians with their highest conceptions of heaven, the noblest picture of the triumphant Christ, the glory of martyrdom for Christ, a mighty support in every hour of struggle.

² Lord our ³ God, the Almighty, reigneth. 7 Let us
⁴ rejoice and be exceeding ⁵ glad, and let us ⁶ give the ⁷ glory unto him: for ⁸ the marriage of the ⁹ Lamb is come, and his ¹⁰ wife hath made herself ready. 8 And it was given unto her that she should ¹¹ array herself in ¹² fine ¹³ linen, bright and pure: for the fine linen is the ¹⁴ righteous acts of the 17 And ^aI ^bsaw ¹an ^dangel standing in the ^esun; and he ^fcried with a loud ^gvoice, saying to ^hall the ⁱbirds that fly in ^jmid ^kheaven, ^lCome and be gathered together unto the ^mgreat supper of ⁿGod; 18 that ye may ^oeat the ^pflesh of ^qkings, and the flesh of ^rcaptains, and the flesh of mighty ^smen, and the flesh of ^thorses and of them that sit thereon, and the flesh of all men, ^uboth ^vfree and bond, and ^wsmall and great.

19 And I saw ^xthe ^ybeast, and ^zthe kings of the ^aearth, and their armies, gathered together to make ^bwar against him that ^csat upon the horse, and against his army. 20 And the beast was taken, and with him the ^dfalse prophet that ^ewrought the ^fsigns ^gin his sight, wherewith he ^hdeceived them that had received the ⁱmark of the beast and them that ^kworshipped his ^mimage: they two were cast alive into the ^{*}lake of ^ofire that burneth with ^rbrimstone: 21 and the rest were ^skilled with the ^tsword of him that sat upon the horse, even the sword which ^ucame forth out of his ^vmouth: and ^wall the birds were filled with their flesh.

20 And I saw ^xan angel coming down out of heaven, having the ^ykey of

List of Biblical Names,

WITH FIGURES AND LETTERS INDICATING THEIR SITUATION ON THE MAPS.

NOTE.—Figures in bold type indicate the numbers of the Maps; the other figures and letters denote the squares of the Maps where the places are to be found:—thus, Antioch (in Syria)—4-2 A; 12-2 G—appears on Map 4 in the square 2 A, and on Map 12 in the square 2 G.

The Publishers have to acknowledge the help given by Professor Sayce in preparing the Map of the Ancient World and the Map of Egypt and Sinai; Colonel Conder, R.E., who has edited the Maps of Palestine, Jerusalem, and Assyria; Sir Charles Wilson, who has prepared the Map illustrating the Travels of St. Paul; and George Armstrong, Esq., Secretary to the Palestine Exploration Fund, who has given the use of photographs of his raised Map of Palestine.

The Maps in NELSON'S BIBLE ATLAS have been specially prepared and engraved from the latest surveys.
